SHIP

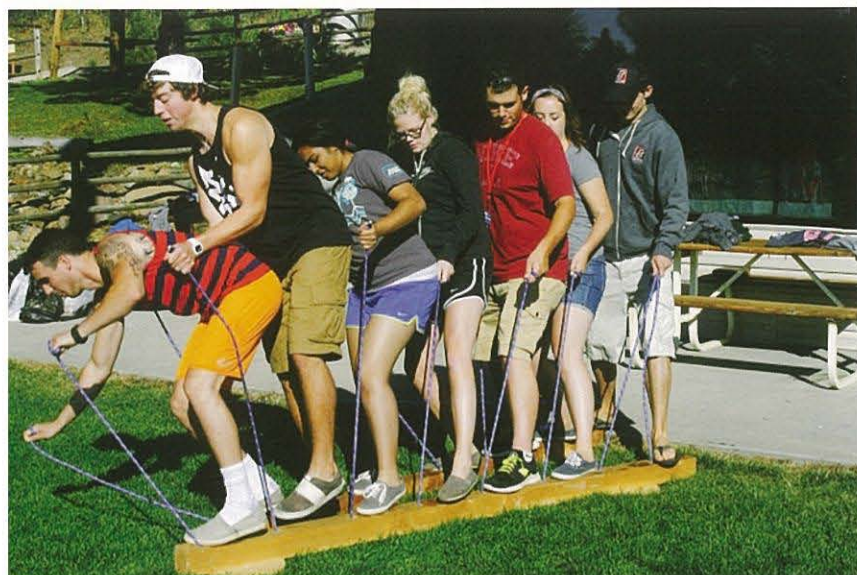

Lead Retreat is a yearly event for all NNU's student leaders to come together at Trinity Pines Camp in Cascade, Idaho to listen to inspiring seminars to prepare and motivate them for their positions in the upcoming school year. Brick House director Jared Trygg shared "lead retreat is an opportunity for students to learn not just how to lead, but to serve together."

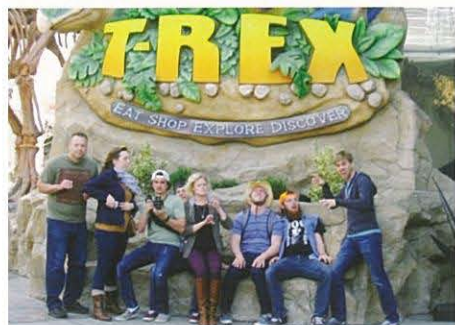

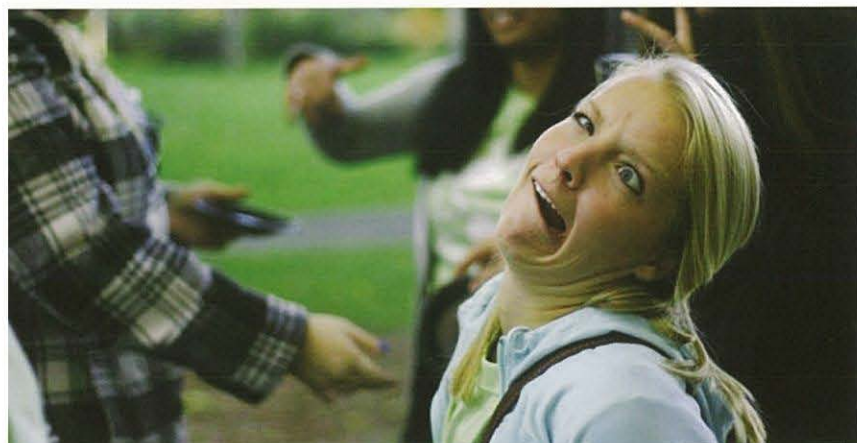

LEAD RETREAT

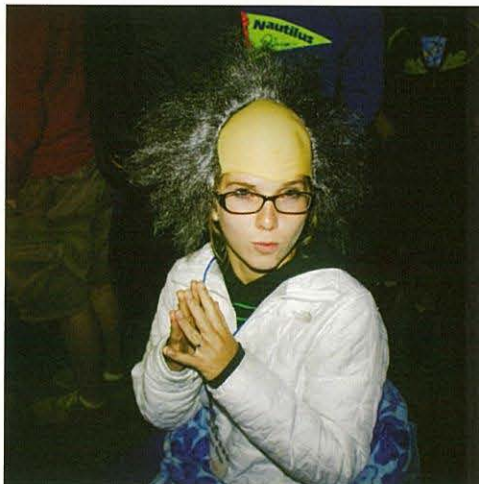

S G A

The 2013-2014 NNU Student Government Association was made up of: President Missy Colby, Vice President Melinda Melch, Social Vice President Jessica Whittaker, Business Manager Davis Halle, Secretary Logan Freiberghaus, Community Relations Coordinator Spencer Hassman, Campus Ministries Coordinator Shaun Hall, Publicity Director Tyler Dooghan, Oasis Director Ella Jamieson, Athletic Liaison Sarah Blum, Campus League Intramural Director Ryan O'Neill and Student Center Director Onjoli Martelly.

COVENANT

WITNESS

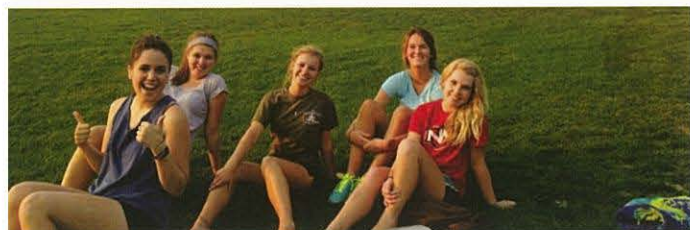

Covenant and Witness are the two student groups that dedicate their summers to traveling across the northwest region, visiting churches and summer camps to build relationships with different communities. The 2013 Covenant team consisted of: Becca Roberts, Paul Zukowski, Miles Wilson, Olicia Temple, Angela Archer and Lucas Lyon. The Witness team consisted of: Ella Jamieson, Jessica Whittaker, Elizabeth Beaty, Shaun Hall and Cody Henderson.

FORD & CULVER

Ford and Culver are NNU's two freshman dorms. Ford is lead by Resident Director, Jessica Novello and Culver is lead by RD Mark Baas. Dooley and Sutherland are the two sophomore dorms. Stacy Freiburghaus is Dooley's fearless leader and Andy Curry is that of Sutherland.

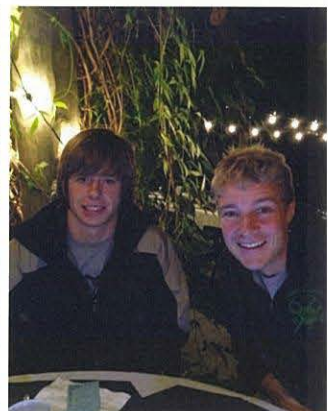

DOOLEY & SUTHERLAND

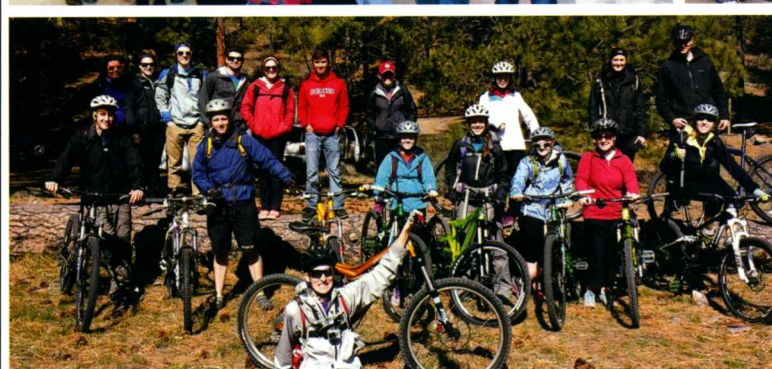

CORLETT, OLSEN & KERKEIDE

Corlett is the home of NNU's Juniors! Resident Director Kylee Ball and her Resident Assistant's planned many fun events including a Christmas party, nail polish night and a tea party! Olsen and Kerkeide are the apartment-style housing for Juniors and Seniors. Resident Director Jeb Anderson had a group of Senior Resident Assistants who planned a unique event for every single Sunday evening!

NNU CLUBS

At NNU, there is a club for everyone. From ministry clubs to business clubs, students have the opportunity to get together on a regular basis to discuss and participate in what is important to them. Clubs teach students leadership skills and teamwork while they get to expand on their knowledge in a subject and make friends along the way.

BAND & CHOIR

If you love to sing and perform, NNU has several different choirs you can get involved in. NNU has several bands and musical ensembles that students can be involved in. Many of these groups perform on campus each semester, as well as travel to churches and do weekend tours.

CLASS COUNCILS, SENATE, PEER HEALTH EDUCATORS & LIFE GROUP LEADERS

Class Council is a great opportunity for students to get involved in leadership roles, while representing their class. The Peer Mentors and Life Group Leaders team up with Resident Assistants to provide another familiar face and outlet for connection in the NNU community. Peer Health Educators are students who are excited about living a nutritious and healthy lifestyle and sharing that with their peers!

STUDEN

MOVE IN DAY

One of the first big events from NNU freshman students happens the moment they arrive on campus move in! Student leaders gather in front of Ford and Culver to cheer on the new students and present them with a warm welcome. These leaders make it so that freshman and their families do not have to lift a finger, as they carry all of the boxes, bins, and suitcases full of bedding and other dorm necessities up to the rooms.

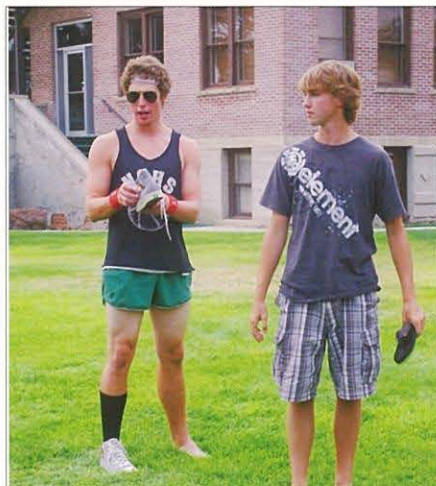

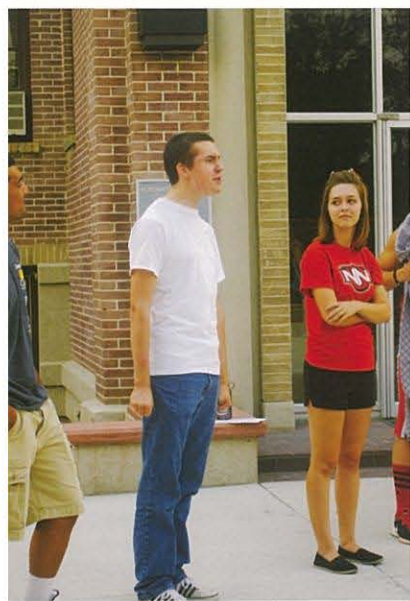

Freshman students divided into to stretch their boundaries for the scavenger hunt. This is a great opportunity for the freshman class to bond within their hunt groups and get a little messy! One of the highlights of the annual scavenger hunt is the big finale at the Brick House for the big milk chug!

SCAVENGER HUNT

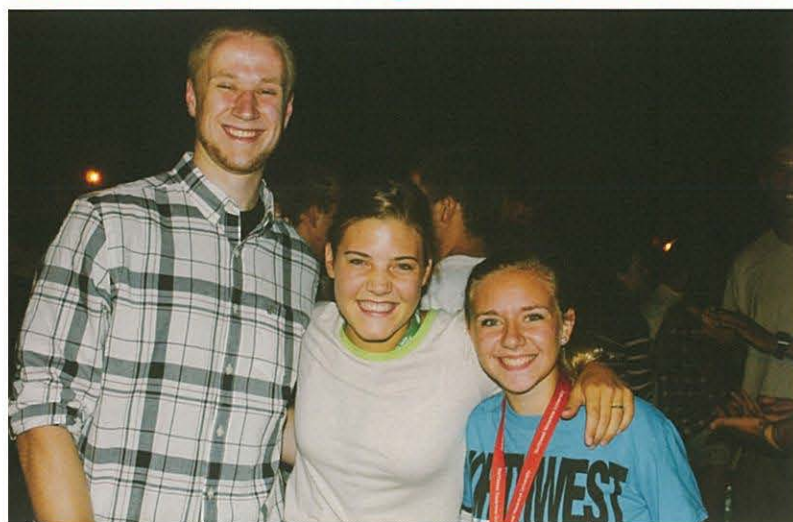

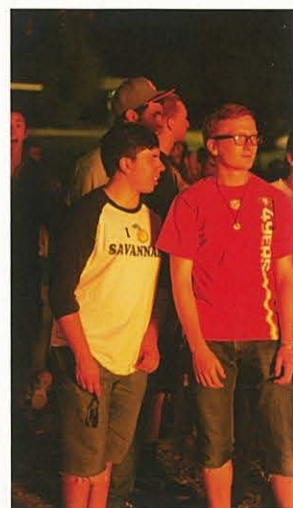

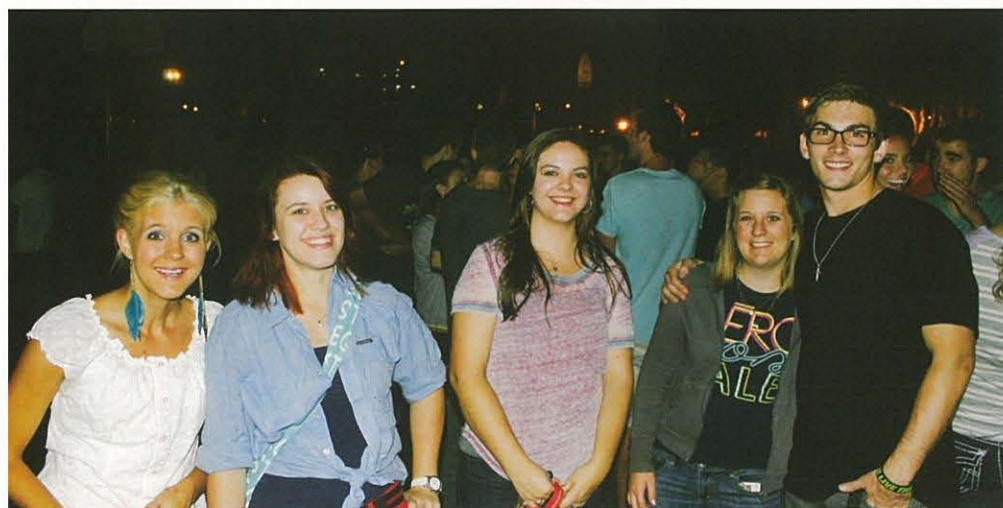

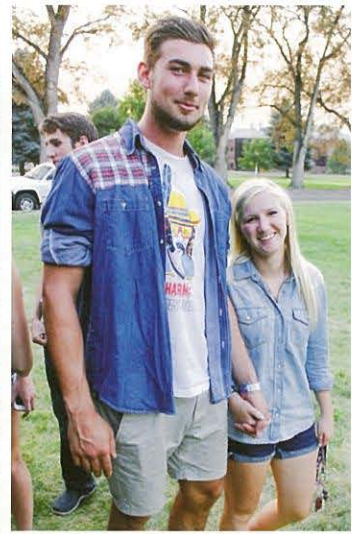

B O N F I R

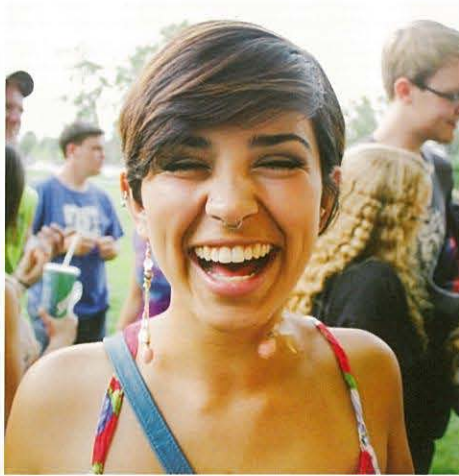

Due to the fire danger level this year the bonfire almost happened without a fire. The Nampa Fire Department gave SGA approval to light the match just in time though and the festivities were complete with S'mores, dancing, and connecting with new students and friends alike.

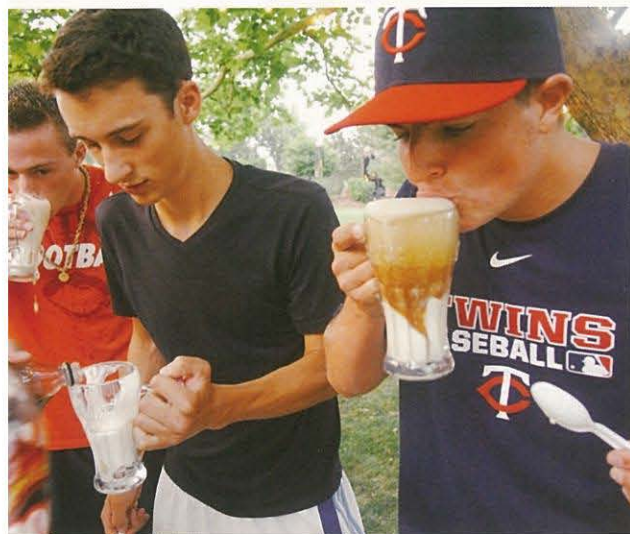

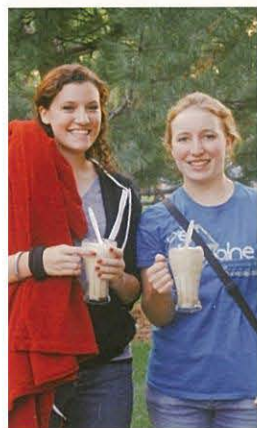

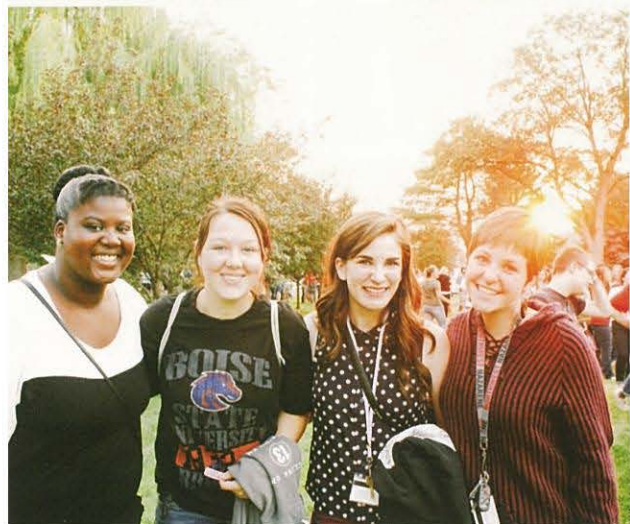

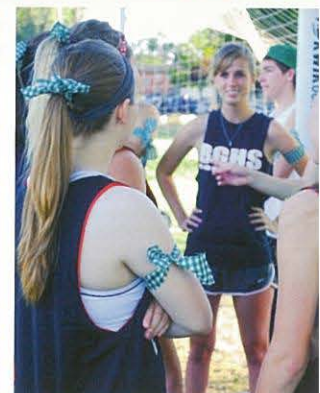

ROOTBEER FEST

Sticking with the theme of Week One, students were taken back in time with Marty McFly in the 1980s classic Back to the Future. Rootbeer floats were served in classic Coco-Cola glasses that each student got to take home as a souvenir of their night under the stars.

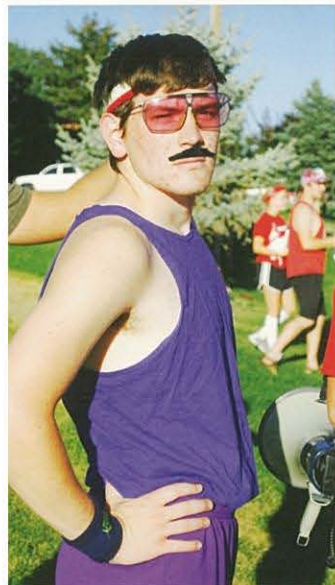

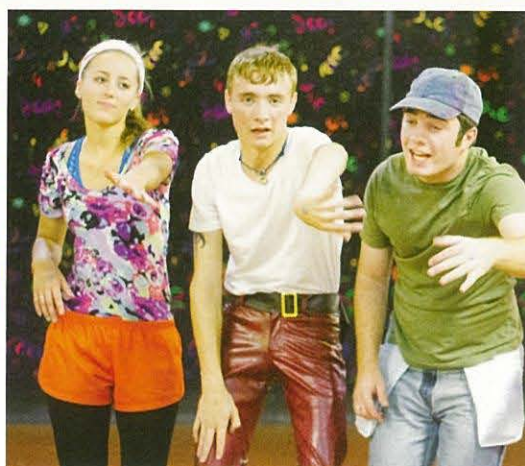

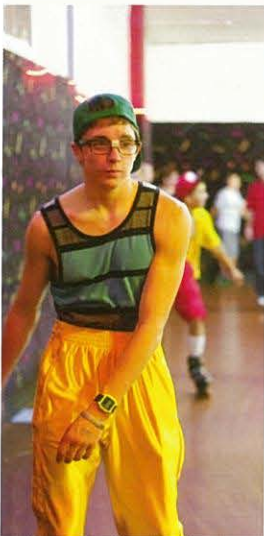

Friday Night Lights is a competition of the dorms including Ford, Culver, Dooley, Sutherland, Corlett, Olsen, & Kirkeide. Each residential hall represents a team and goes through a series of games that ends in a big dance competition. This event is always a crowd pleaser, as it ends in warm memories of running, skipping, getting flour in hair, and raw fish!

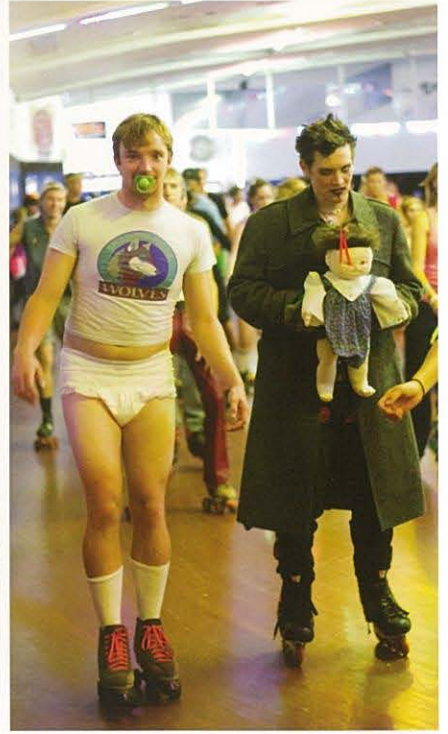

FRIDAY NIGHT LIGHTS

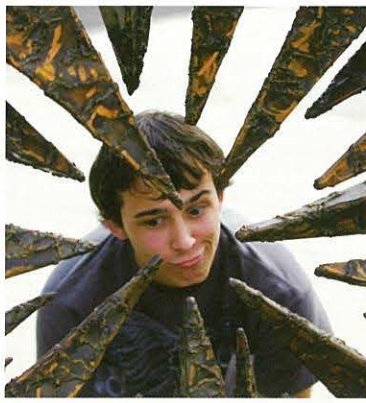

Week One closed with the annual skating adventure at the Nampa RollerDome. Rollerscamming was a chance for students to show off their flashback and futuristic styles as they skated the night away and avoided classes for just a bit longer.

ROLLER SCAMMING

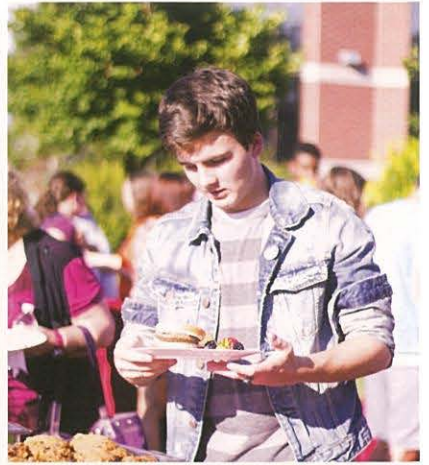

FRESHMEN RETREAT

Freshman gathered at Trinity Pines for a weekend of class bonding and fun! Relationships that will last a lifetime were established while the students played games and listened to motivational speakers.

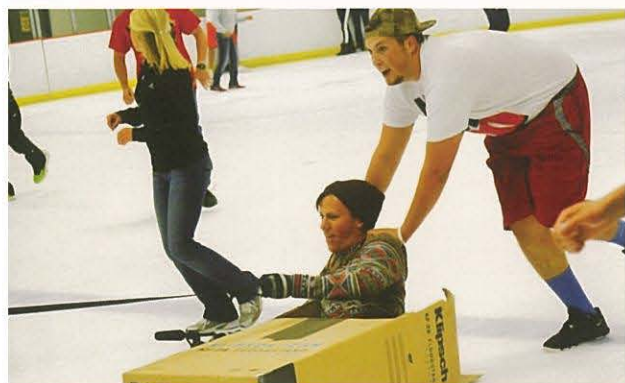

FOUNDERS WEEK

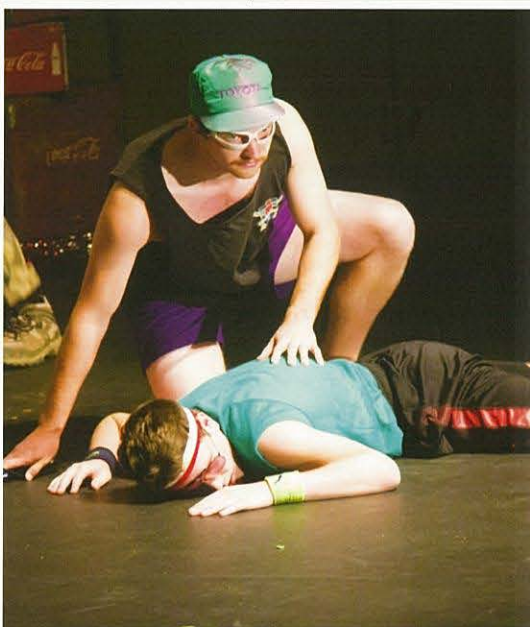

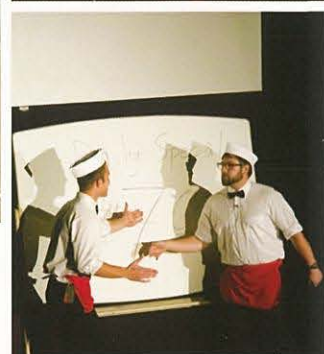

BROOM HOCKEY

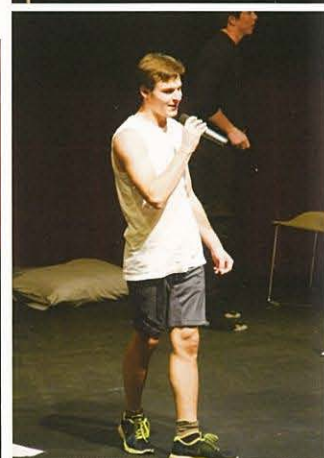

Led by SGA, students bundled up to gather at Idaho Ice World to participate in a night full of slipping and sliding and friendly competition. NNUers participated in games such as Red Light Green Light, and "The Blob" on the ice. Although inevitably a few bumps and bruises occurred, everybody had a fun time and made great memories.

Fresheree is a night full of smiles and laughs when students get to show off their best talents. This years event was hosted by Tyler Dooghan, Onjoli Martelly, and Connor Back. Performances ranged from singing, to dancing, to SNL skits. An unforgettable moment of Fresheree 2013 is when Dr. Alexander shook his groove thang on video and in front of the live audience.

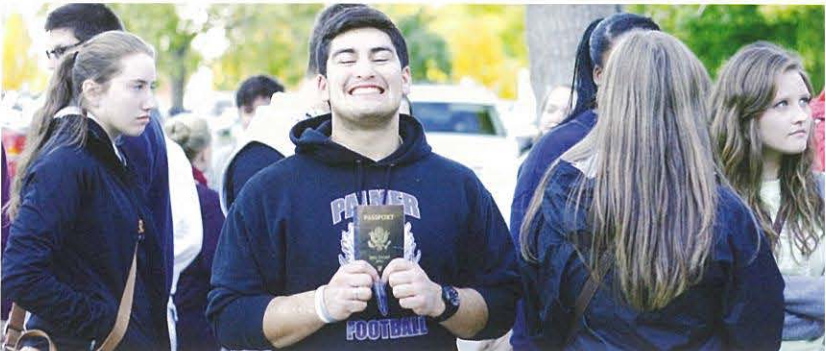

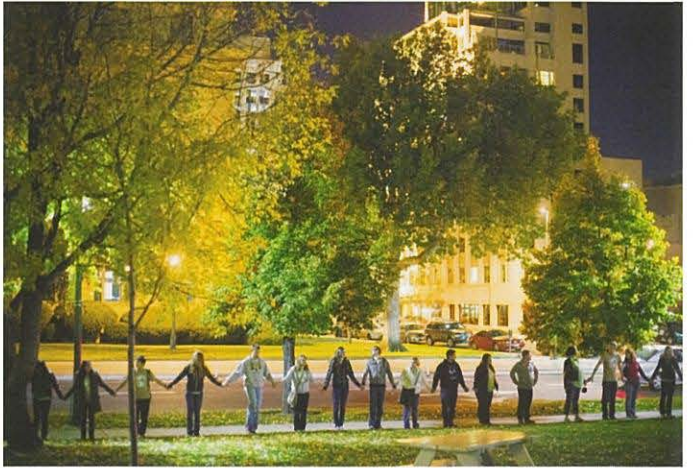

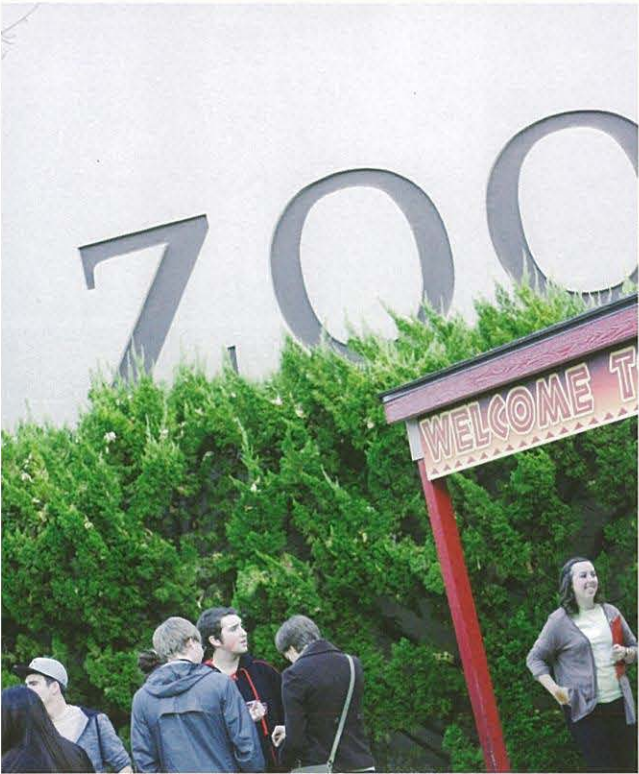

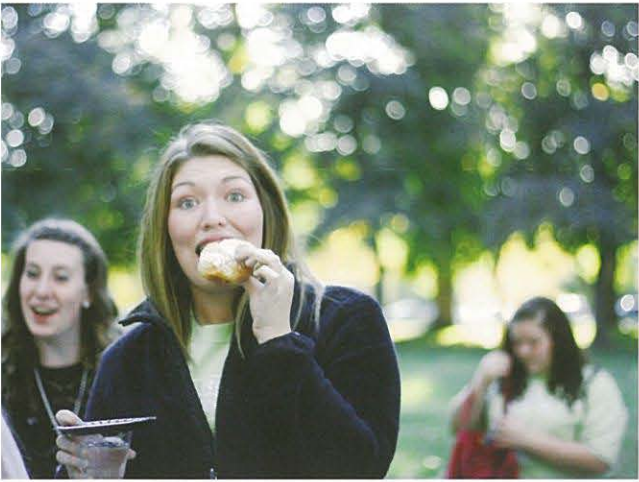

TWIRP

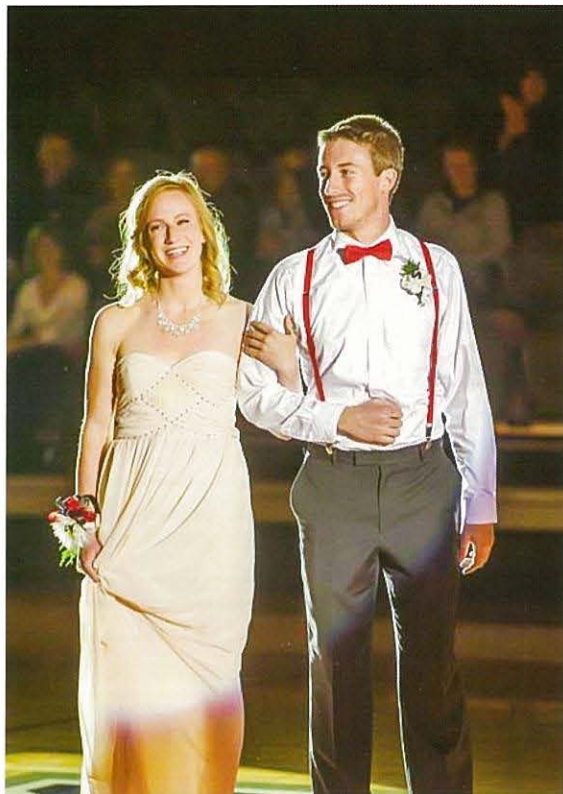

TWIRP is an annual event at NNU that stands for the woman is required to pay. With the theme being "Around the World" this year, students participated in events such as exploring the zoo, participating in the highland games, and attempting to break the world record for the longest line of Irish dancing.

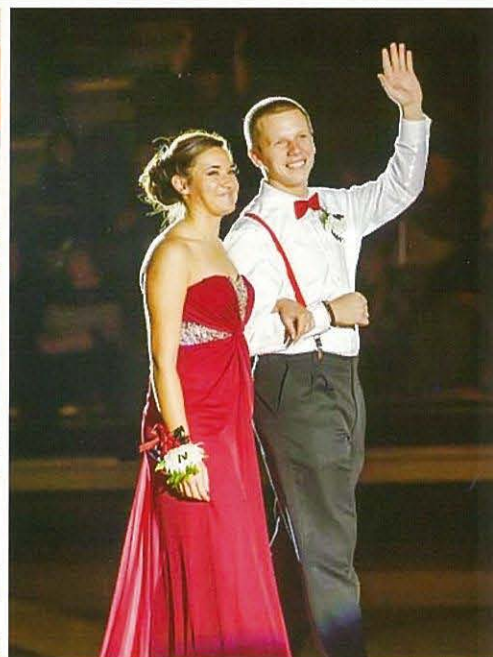

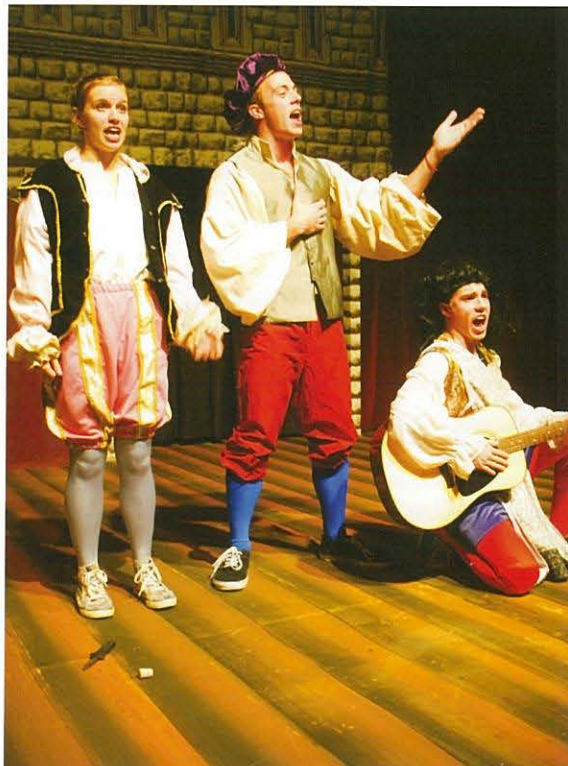

HOMECOMING

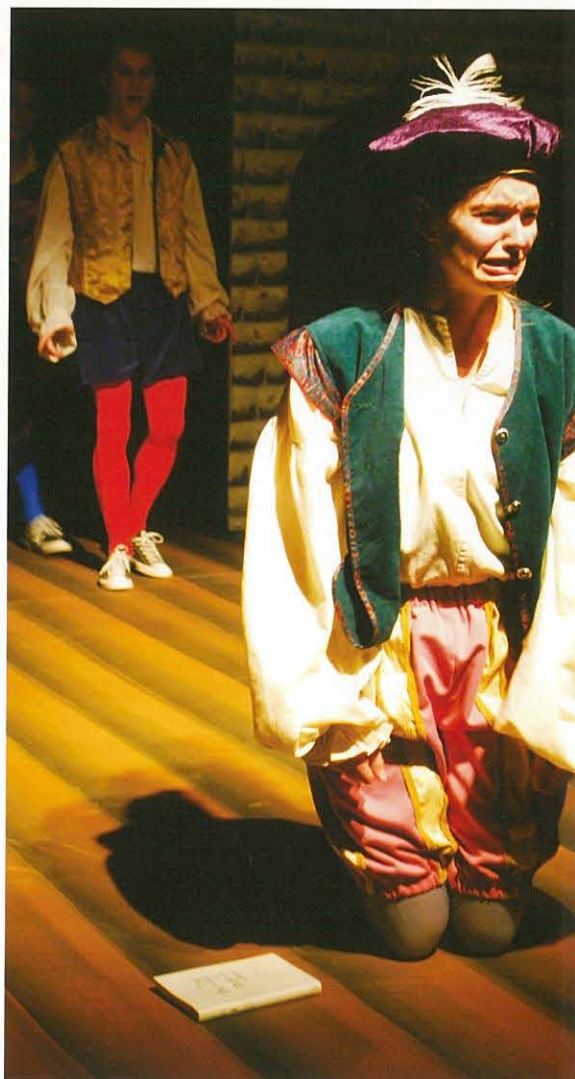

Homecoming is a huge event that happens every fall, to celebrate NNU students past and present. This year's homecoming was NNU's 100th Birthday, so the celebrating lasted a whole year! Homecoming this year included the homecoming men's basketball game against Point Loma Nazarene. A huge concert put on by Michael W. Smith along with a choir of over 400 students and alumni. The weekend was a wonderful way to celebrate NNU's 100th Birthday.

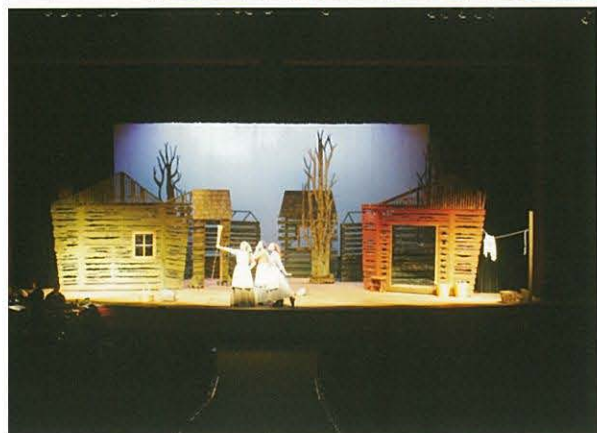

THEATRE

This years fall play was the production of "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder and in the spring "Fiddler on the Roof" was performed. Along with the other Homecoming activities, "Our Town" was a major highlight to NNU students and parents alike.

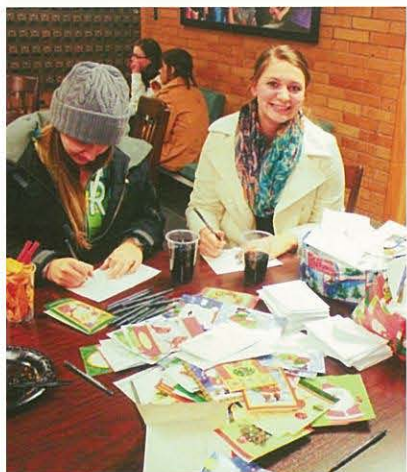

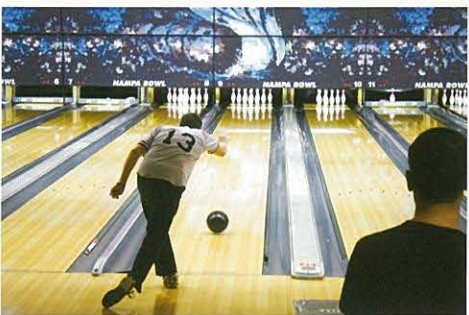

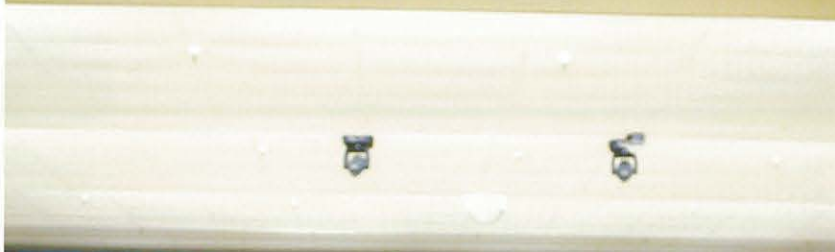

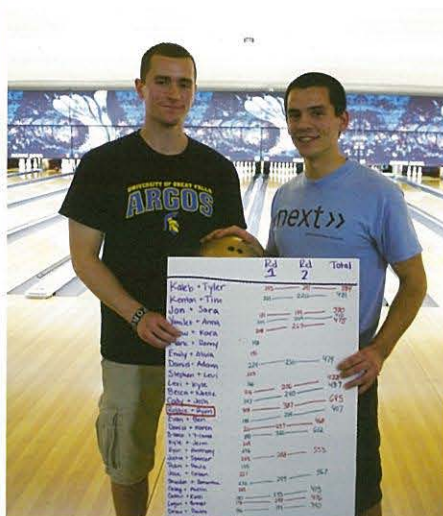

PROCRASTINATION PARTY

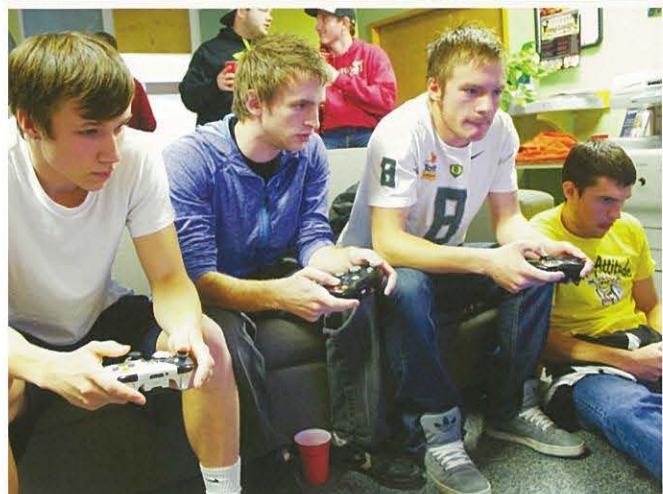

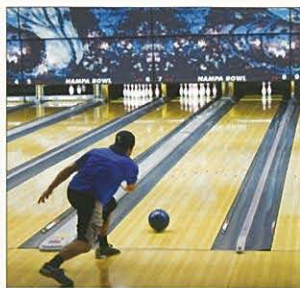

Santa and Mrs. Claus joined NNU students in the student center on the Friday of dead week to spread a little holiday cheer! The men and women of NNU wrote letters to send to the North Pole, constructed gingerbread houses, and even ate spaghetti "Elf"-style with chocolate syrup!

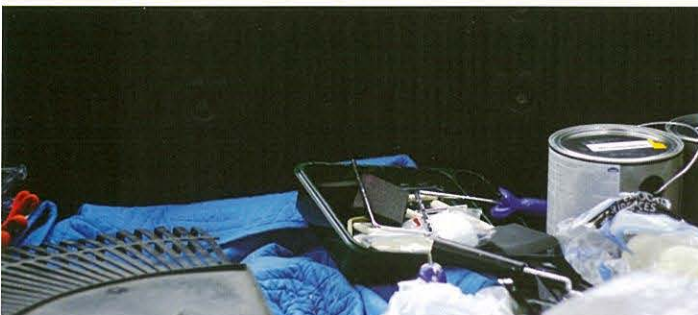

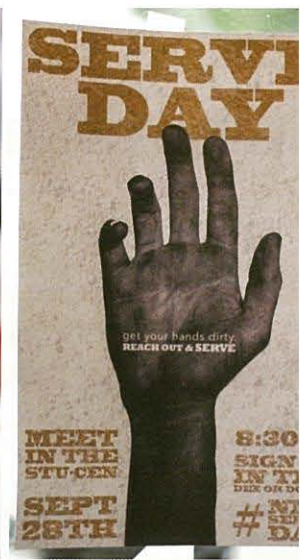

Campus League Activities consists of crazy games from Humans VS Zombies, to Tagged, to the Amazing Race. Led and directed by Sara Oliver, numerous students participated in these campus games and made some hilarious memories along the way. Oliver shares, "Being my first year it was a learning experience for me but also really fun to get students involved who aren't usually involved. I hope all the students who got involved enjoyed it all just as much as I did!"

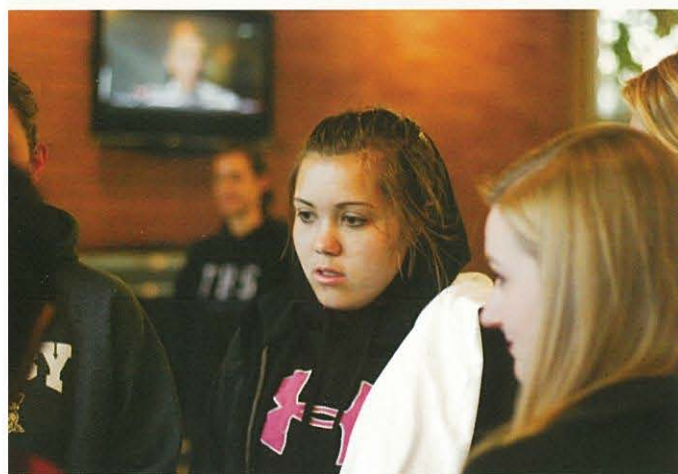

CAMPUS LEAGUE ACTIVITIES

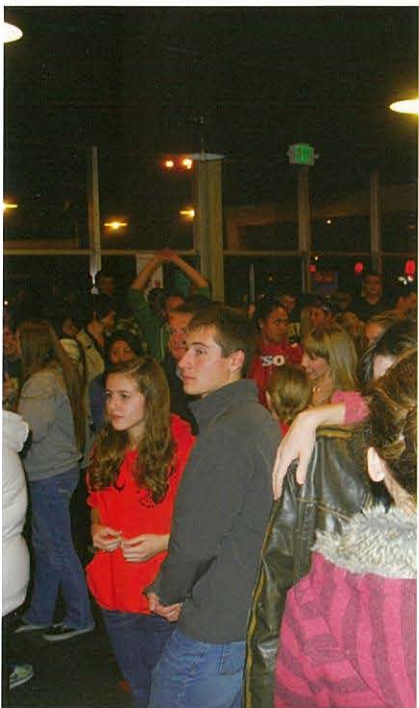

SERVE DAY

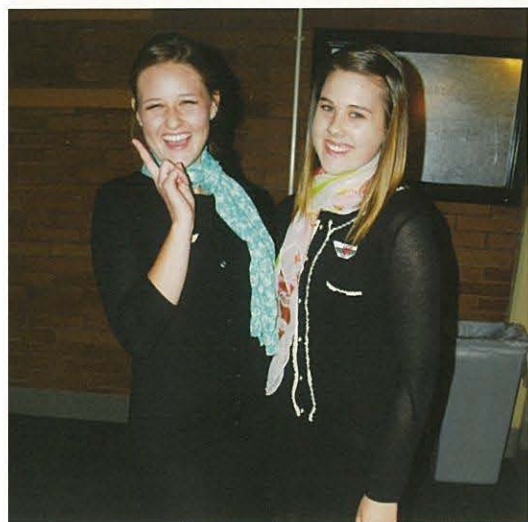

Community Relations Coordinator Spencer Hassman put on a great serve day this year where students had the opportunity to serve the Nampa community. Whether they were raking leaves, or painting fences, students joined in community to make Nampa a better place.

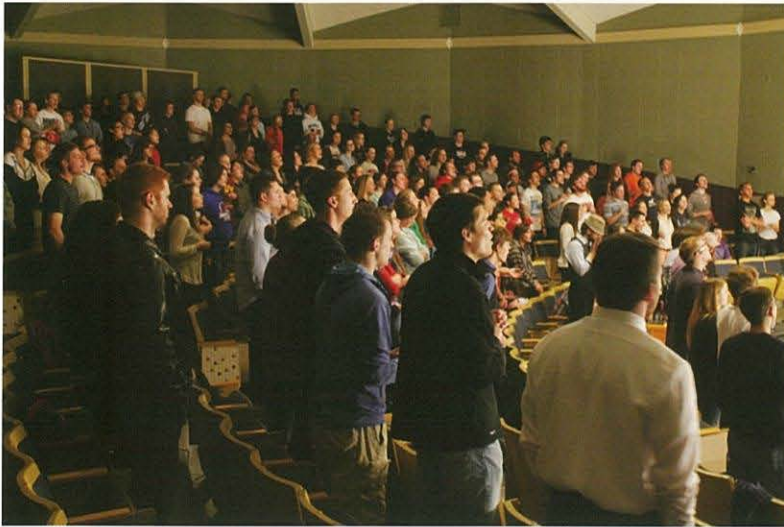

WEDNESDAY NIGHT LIVE

Student Center Director Onjoli Martelly pulled out all of the stops this year for students during Wednesday Night Live, a bi-weekly event for all students. Activities included, ice cream troffing, frozen t-shirt contests and Corbin Maxey the Reptile Man!

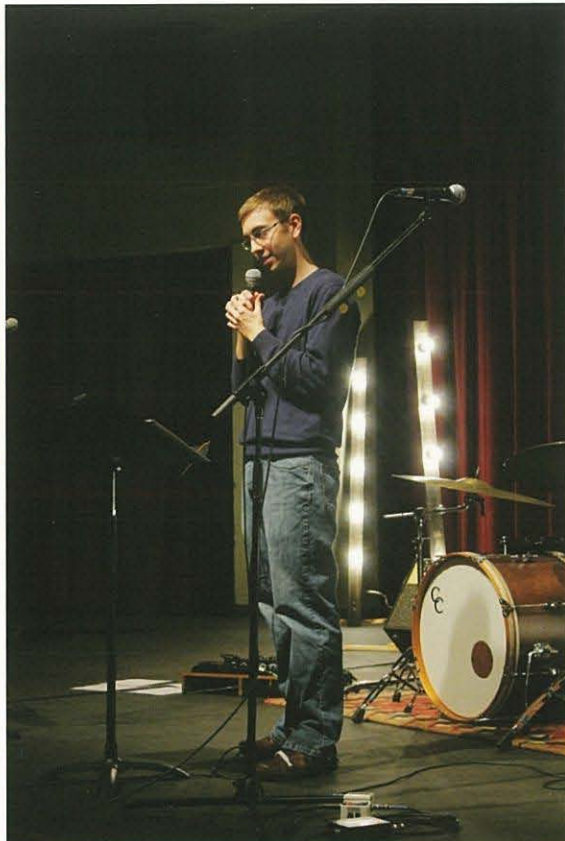

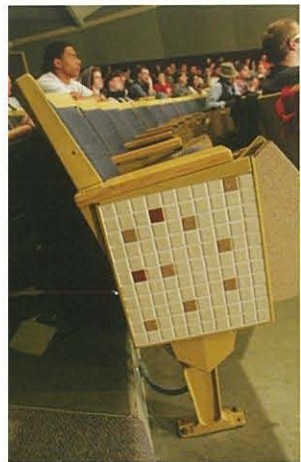

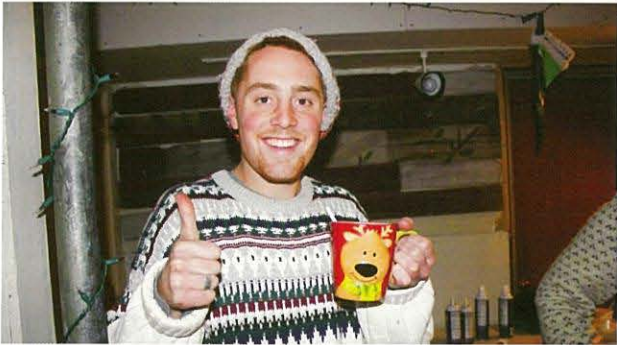

Students have come alive this year at Timeout. Shaun Hall helped to light a fire in the student body as the Campus Ministries Coordinator that everyone hopes to continue into next year. Timeout became more than mid-week break from homework, it became a place to quench our thirst for relationship with our Heavenly Father.

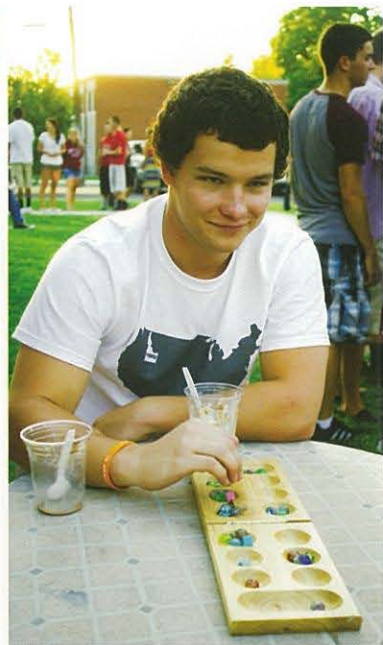

T I M E O U T

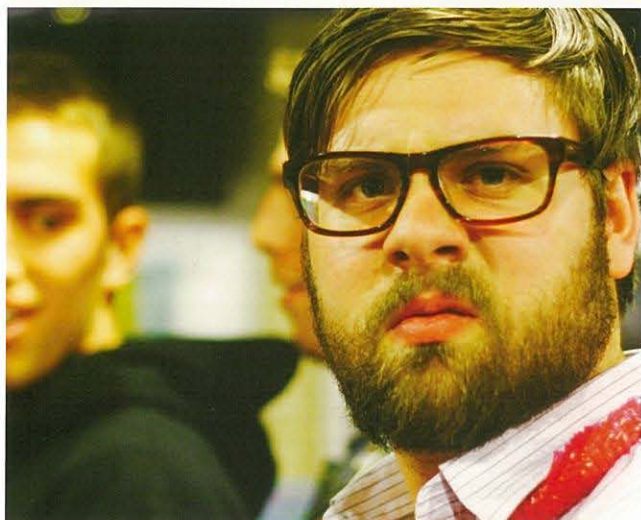

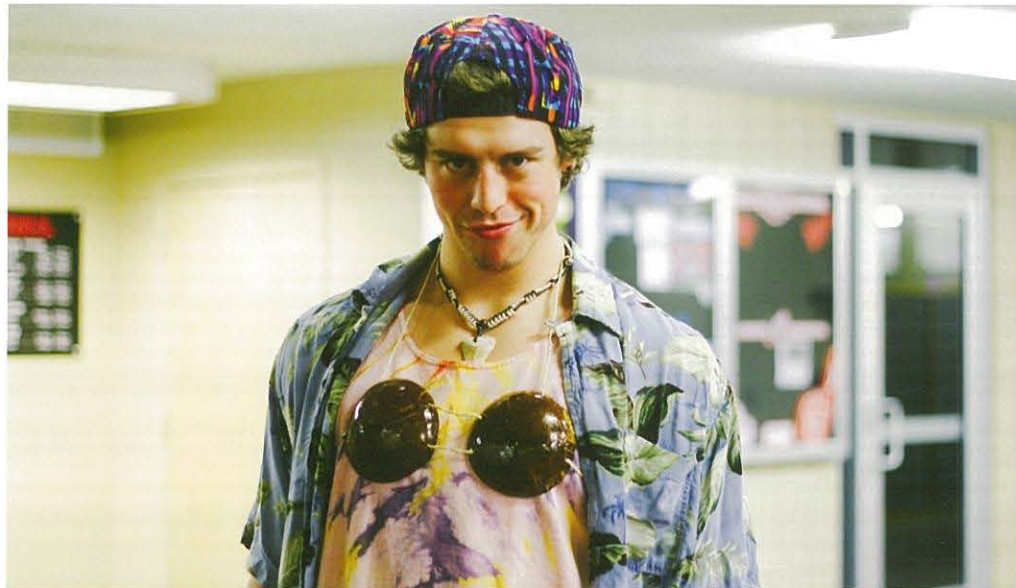

The NNU Brickhouse is a well-known spot on campus. Directors Jared and Stephanie Trygg and their staff plan weekly events, held on Thursday evening for all students. Activities this year included a birthday party for all, stoplight party, Christmas party, Halloween party, Olympics party and any other amazing party you can think of!

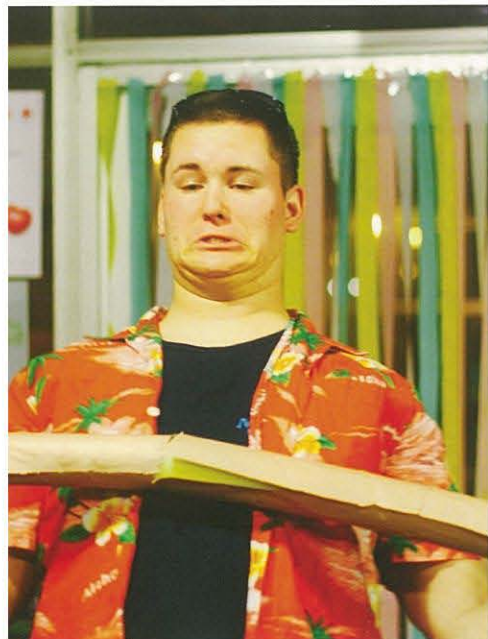

THE BRICK HOUSE

After a long winter break, NNU students are ready to come back to campus and reunite with all of their terribly missed roommates and friends. To celebrate a new semester, Jessica Whittaker, our Social Vice President, coordinated a night at full of hope for summer! Before heading over to the Nampa Recreation Center for annual basketball, pizza and swimming, students enjoyed a “luou” themed evening making lays, limbo-ing and drinking Capri Sun.

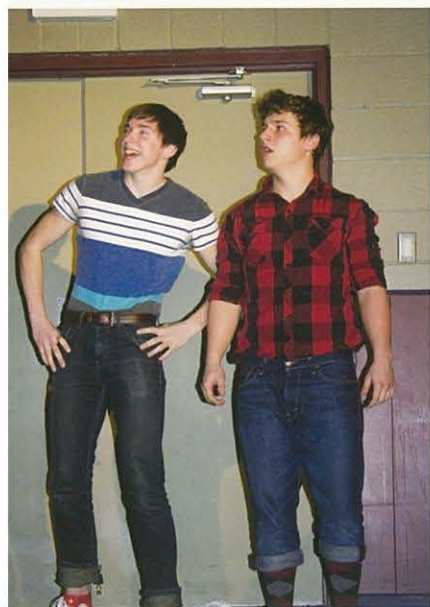

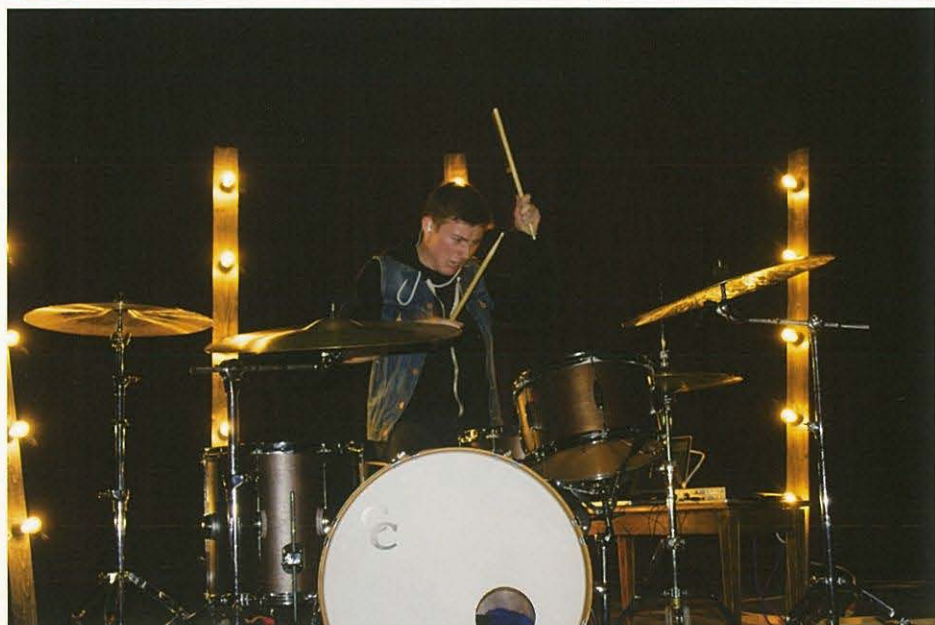

WEEK BACK LUOU

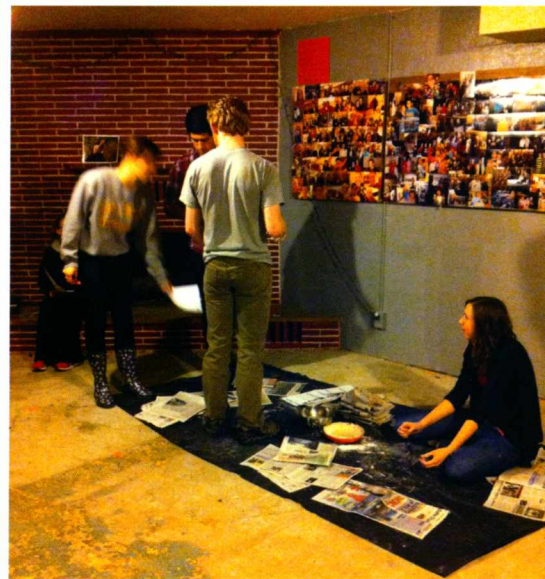

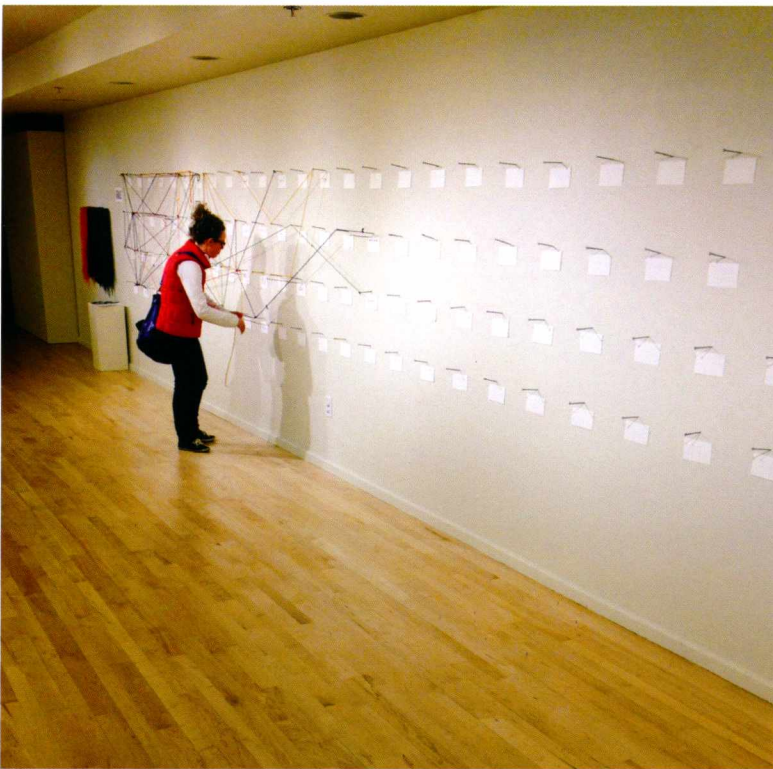

MR. NNU

Mr. NNU is an annual tradition that always brings the NNU student body to laugh and celebrate the pride that goes along with being an “NNU Man”. This year, Nathan Knox won the crown after an incredible performance on the drums, along with a “gender-switching” skit that we will not soon forget. In second place, Tyler Dooghan impressed the crowd with his incredible dance skills and hilarious skit.

AWARENESS WEEK

Awareness week was themed "Healed" by Community Relations Coordinator, Spencer Hassman. He hoped that bringing up tough issues and opening wounds, students would understand more about themselves and their walks with God. This years Winter Awakening speaker was Benji Rodes and his crew from Seattle Church of the Undignified. Students were confronted with real issues and new thoughts. Every night the Holy Spirit was felt heavily and lives were healed.

WINTER AWAKENING

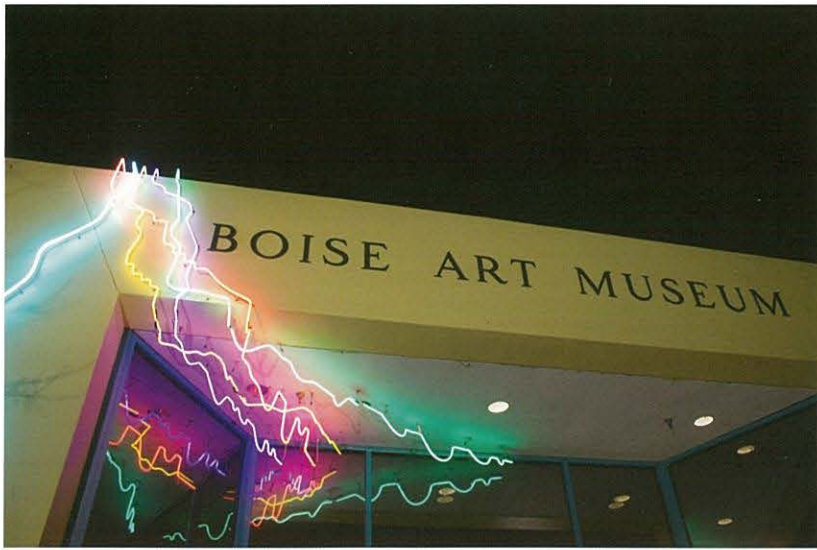

THE BLACK TIE

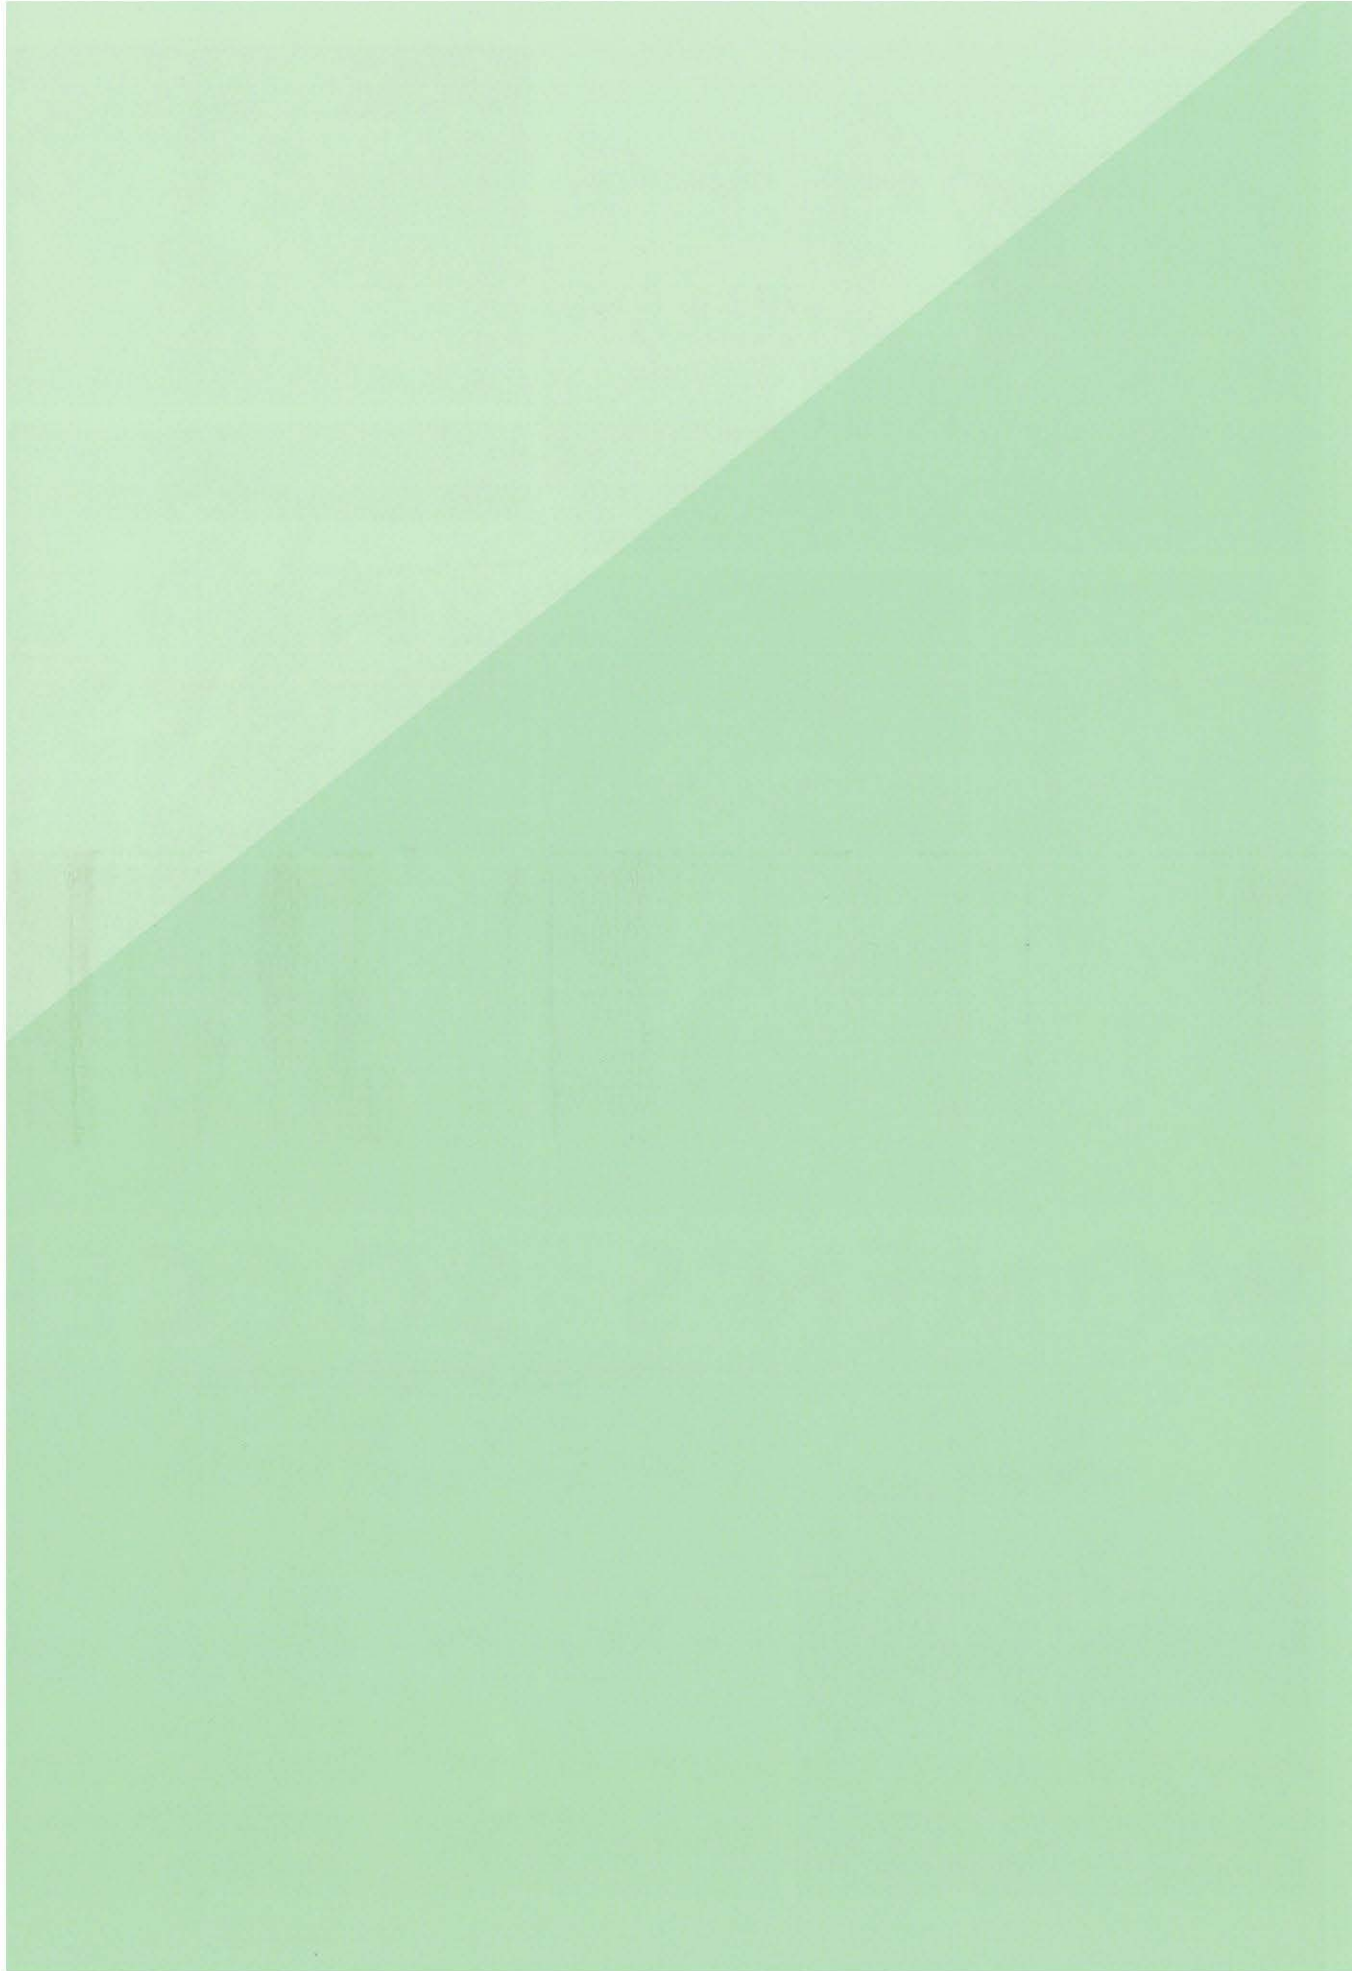

The Roaring Twenties was the theme of this year's Black Tie! Students dressed accordingly and headed out to the Boise State University Sky Box where dinner was served and photos were taken! The swanky evening continued to the Boise Art Museum for cupcakes and twenties-style dance lessons!

The image features a solid green background. A diagonal line runs from the bottom-left corner towards the middle-right edge, creating a darker green triangular area in the bottom-right corner. At the bottom of the image, there is a white rectangular frame that contains the word "SPORTS" in a large, white, sans-serif font. The text is positioned such that it spans across the boundary of the diagonal split.

SPORTS

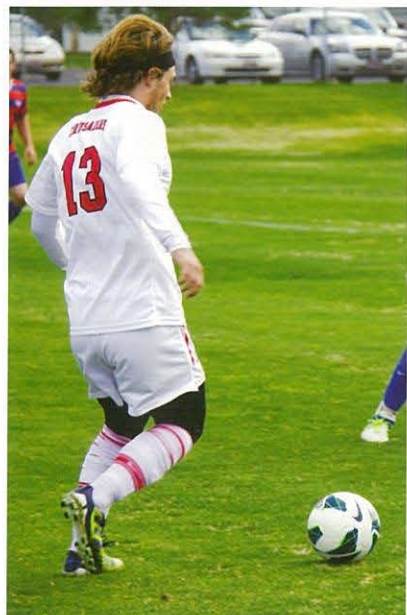

WOMEN'S SOCCER

The Women's Soccer team, under coach Mary Trigg, faced a difficult season and fought hard to bring home some glory coming out with an overall record of 2-12-3. The women's team also picked up the Academic Award by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America.

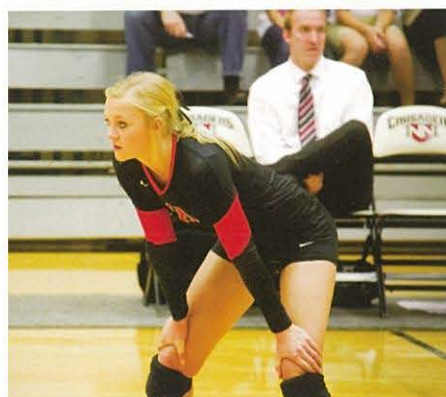

MEN'S SOCCER

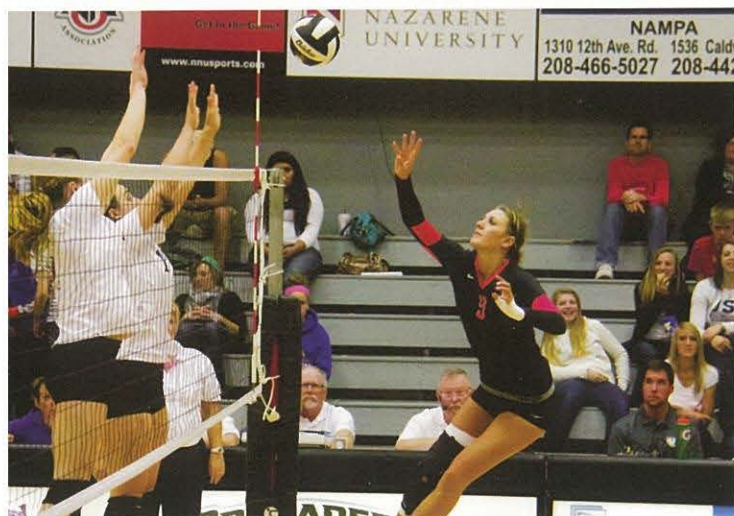

This year the Crusaders set a school record when they finished the season 14-4 in GNAC competition and tied the school record in NCAA Division II competition with the overall match record of 18-6. The team lost no seniors this year and hopes to make an even bigger impact on the GNAC when next season comes around.

VOLLEYBALL

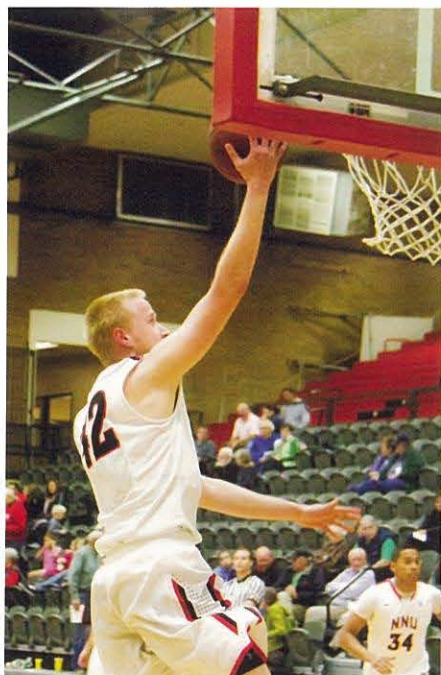

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The women's basketball team had an outstanding season with an unbelievable 20-9 record! This led to the team being voted in to play in Round One of the NCAA Tournament in Seattle, WA. Megan Hingston was also honored by earned a spot on the 2012-13 Division II Bulletin Honorable Mention Team. The women played hard and always drew a big crowd, their season was nothing short of a slam dunk!

MEN'S BASKETBALL

The NNU men's basketball team ended their season with a 13-13 record. Senior basketball player Jon Hawkins shares, "it has been an honor to be with this group of guys. In my whole entire basketball career I have never spent so much time with such character and studly guys." Junior Mario Donaldson shares, "throughout the year we developed a close brotherhood. We had some rocky roads throughout the year, but we finished very strong winning our last three games" Jon Hawkins, Kevin Rima, and Kenny Jones were named to the Great Northwest Athletic Conference 2012-2013 Honorable Mention Team.

The softball team has had a great season this year with a new coach and a young team. Kayla Fadenrecht, a senior, had this to say about the season: "I believe that we were the first team to begin rebuilding the program and set a precedent for the expectations of this team. Coach Wags has been great this year and I think the team and this program will be very successful in the years to come."

B A S E B A L L

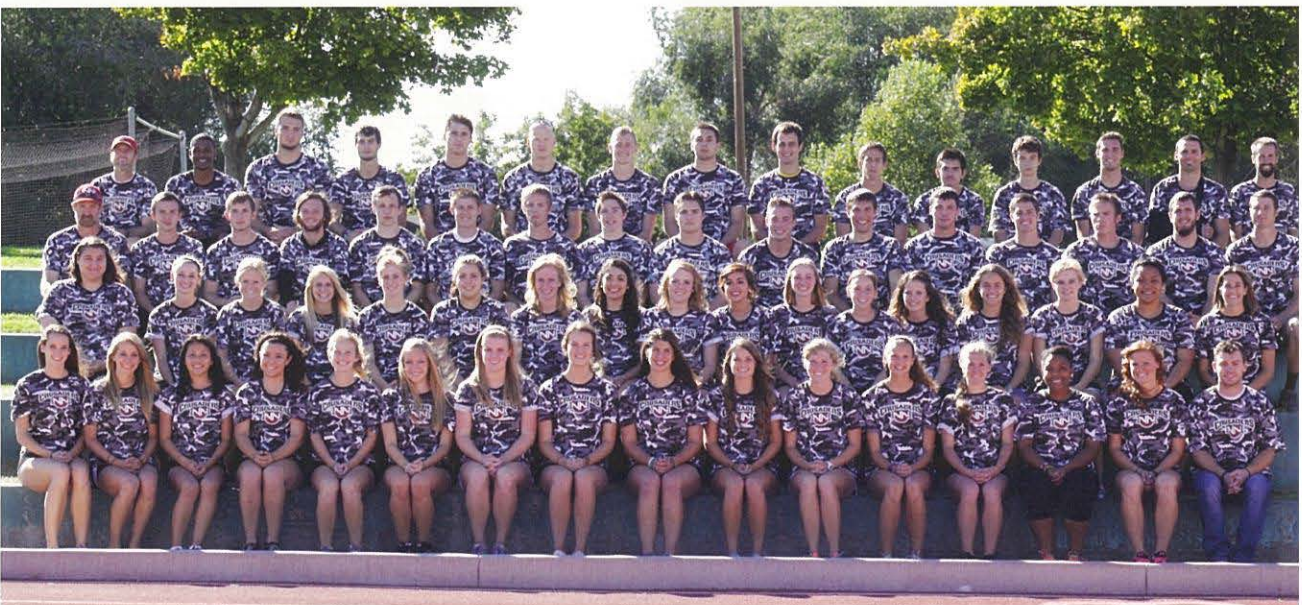

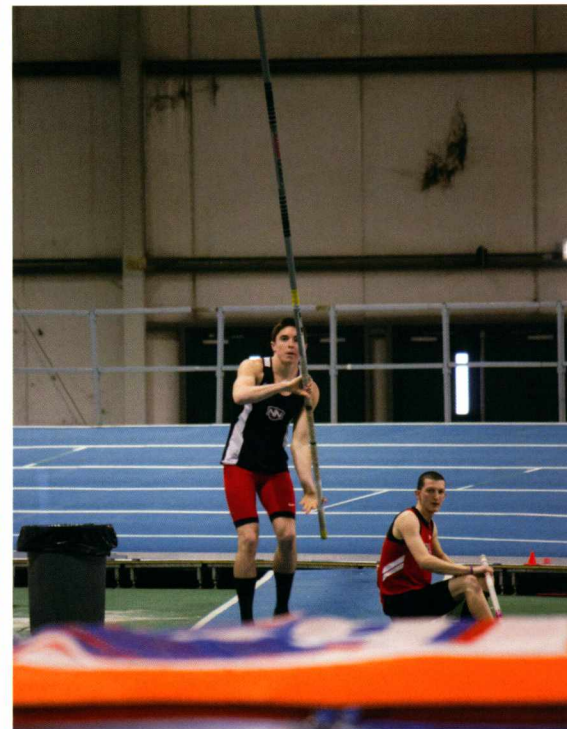

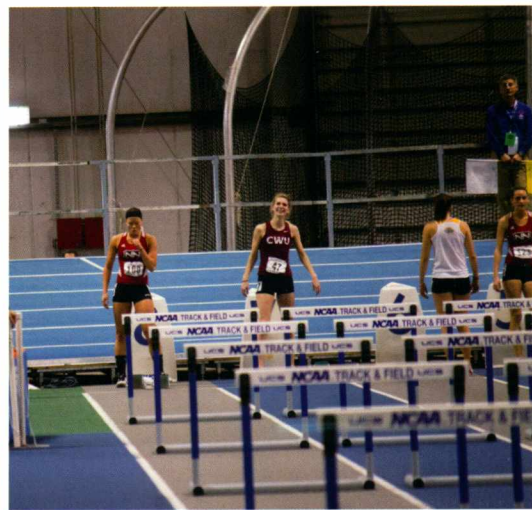

The baseball team has had a grand slam of a season this year. Not only did they travel to Hawaii to play but also they have a great overall record. With great players like Charlie Gorzo who leads in runs scored, Greg Hata leading in home runs, and Logan Parker with a .366 batting average it's no wonder that they are knocking their opponents out of the park!

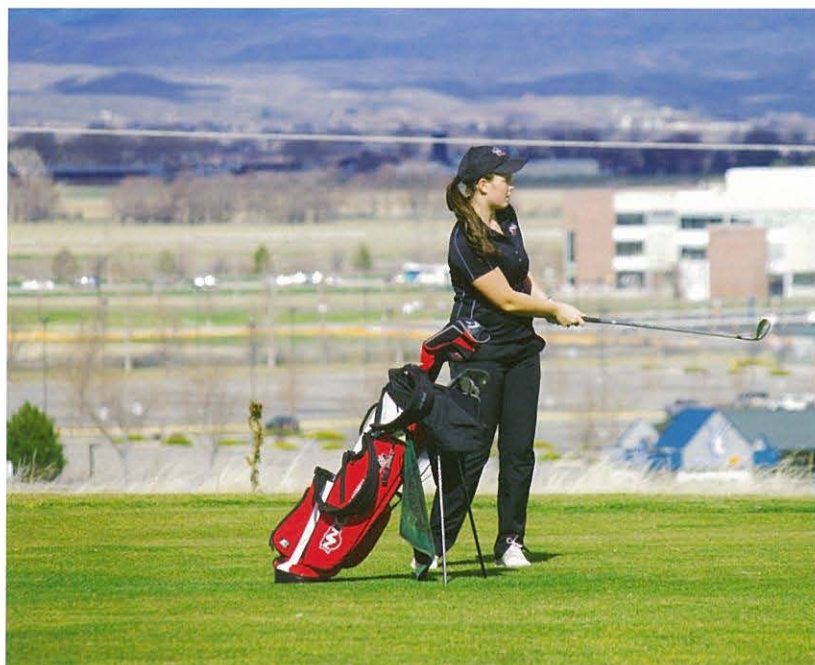

TRACK & FIELD

The Crusader Track and Field teams both finished the season strong. In women's throwing Carly Dranginis placed 2nd, Alicia Hedrick 4th, Jazzy Warrington 5th and Vessie Umu 6th. Vessie also placed 2nd in shot put. Melissa Merioles took 1st in the 400 meter. For the men's team Rimar Christie placed 2nd in 60 meters and 5th in hurdles. The boys 4X4 relay took 2nd place. Both Crystabel Leonce and Rimar Christie broke school records in prelims. There were so many other great performances and tons of PR's, the Crusaders were represented well by the Track and Field team.

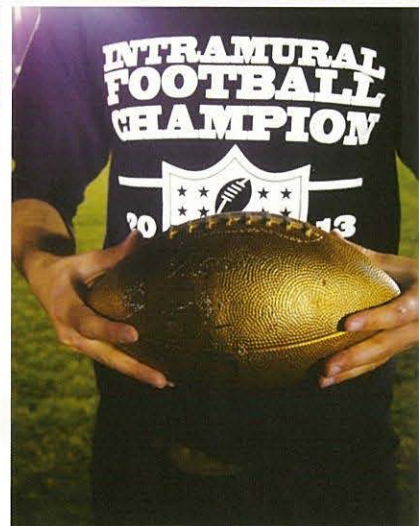

This year the Crusader Golfers had many top finishes from graduate student Nick Hardy, Junior Connor Magnuson, transfer Ian Briske, and Freshman Samantha Miller. Hardy won the first individual tournament title in the GNAC NCAA Division II level at the Sonoma State Invitational. The Women set their own record in the fall by shooting a single-round team low of 323. The Crusaders hope to continue the efforts of this season when they start up in the Fall.

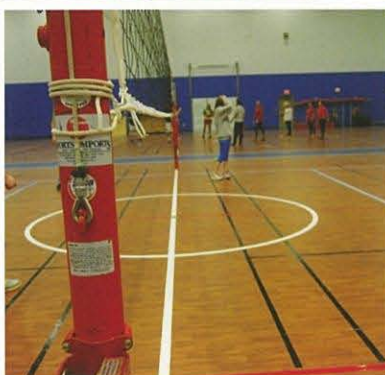

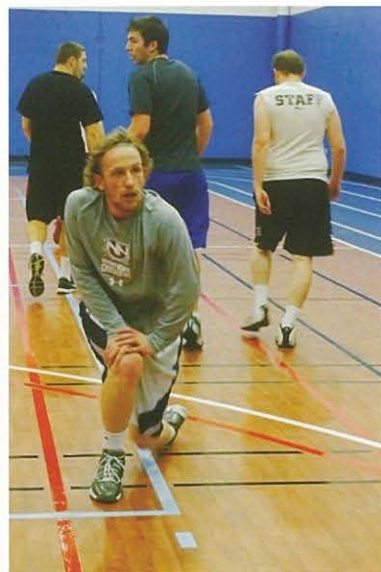

GOLF

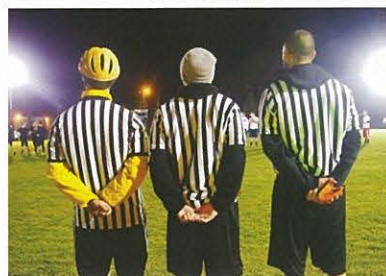

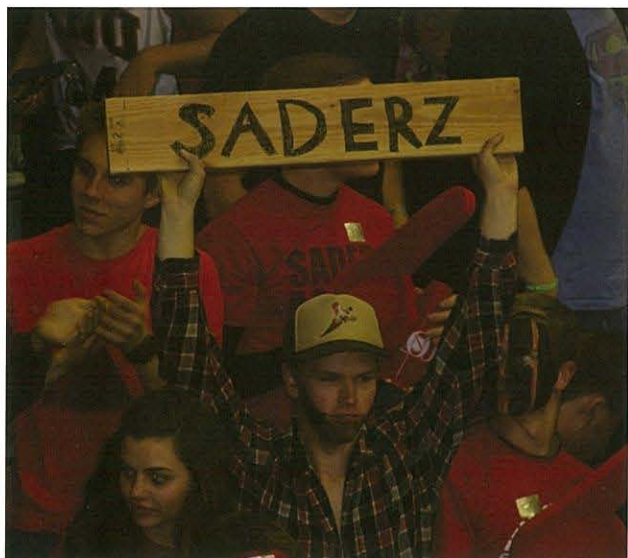

Campus League is an intramural program specifically for the students of NNU. The league is split into two categories of sports and activities. Led by Internural Director Ryan O'Neill, the program offers co-ed sports such as outdoor 4-on-4 Volleyball, Ultimate Frisbee, and Soccer as well as Men's Football, Women's Powder-puff Football, Men's Basketball, and Women's Basketball!

INTRAMURALS

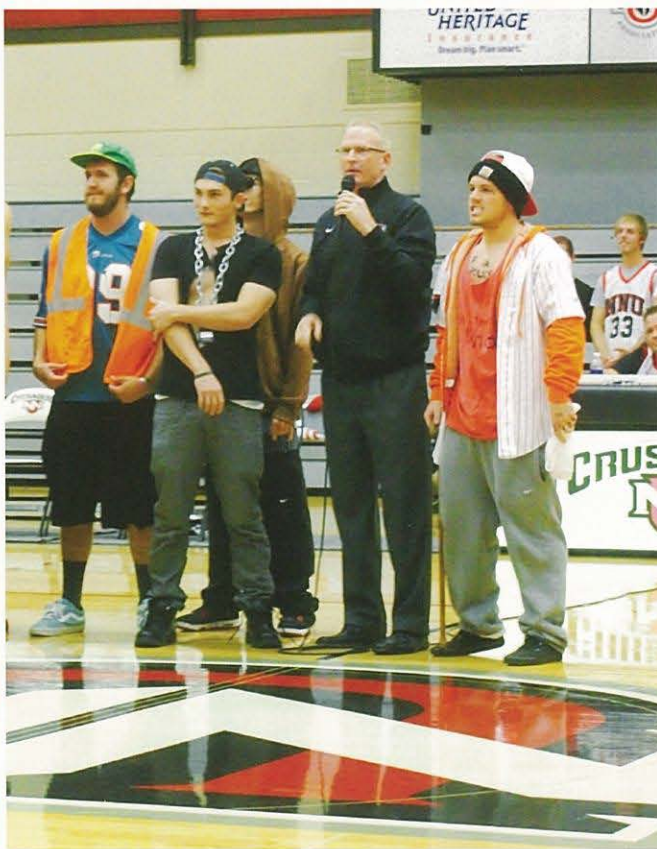

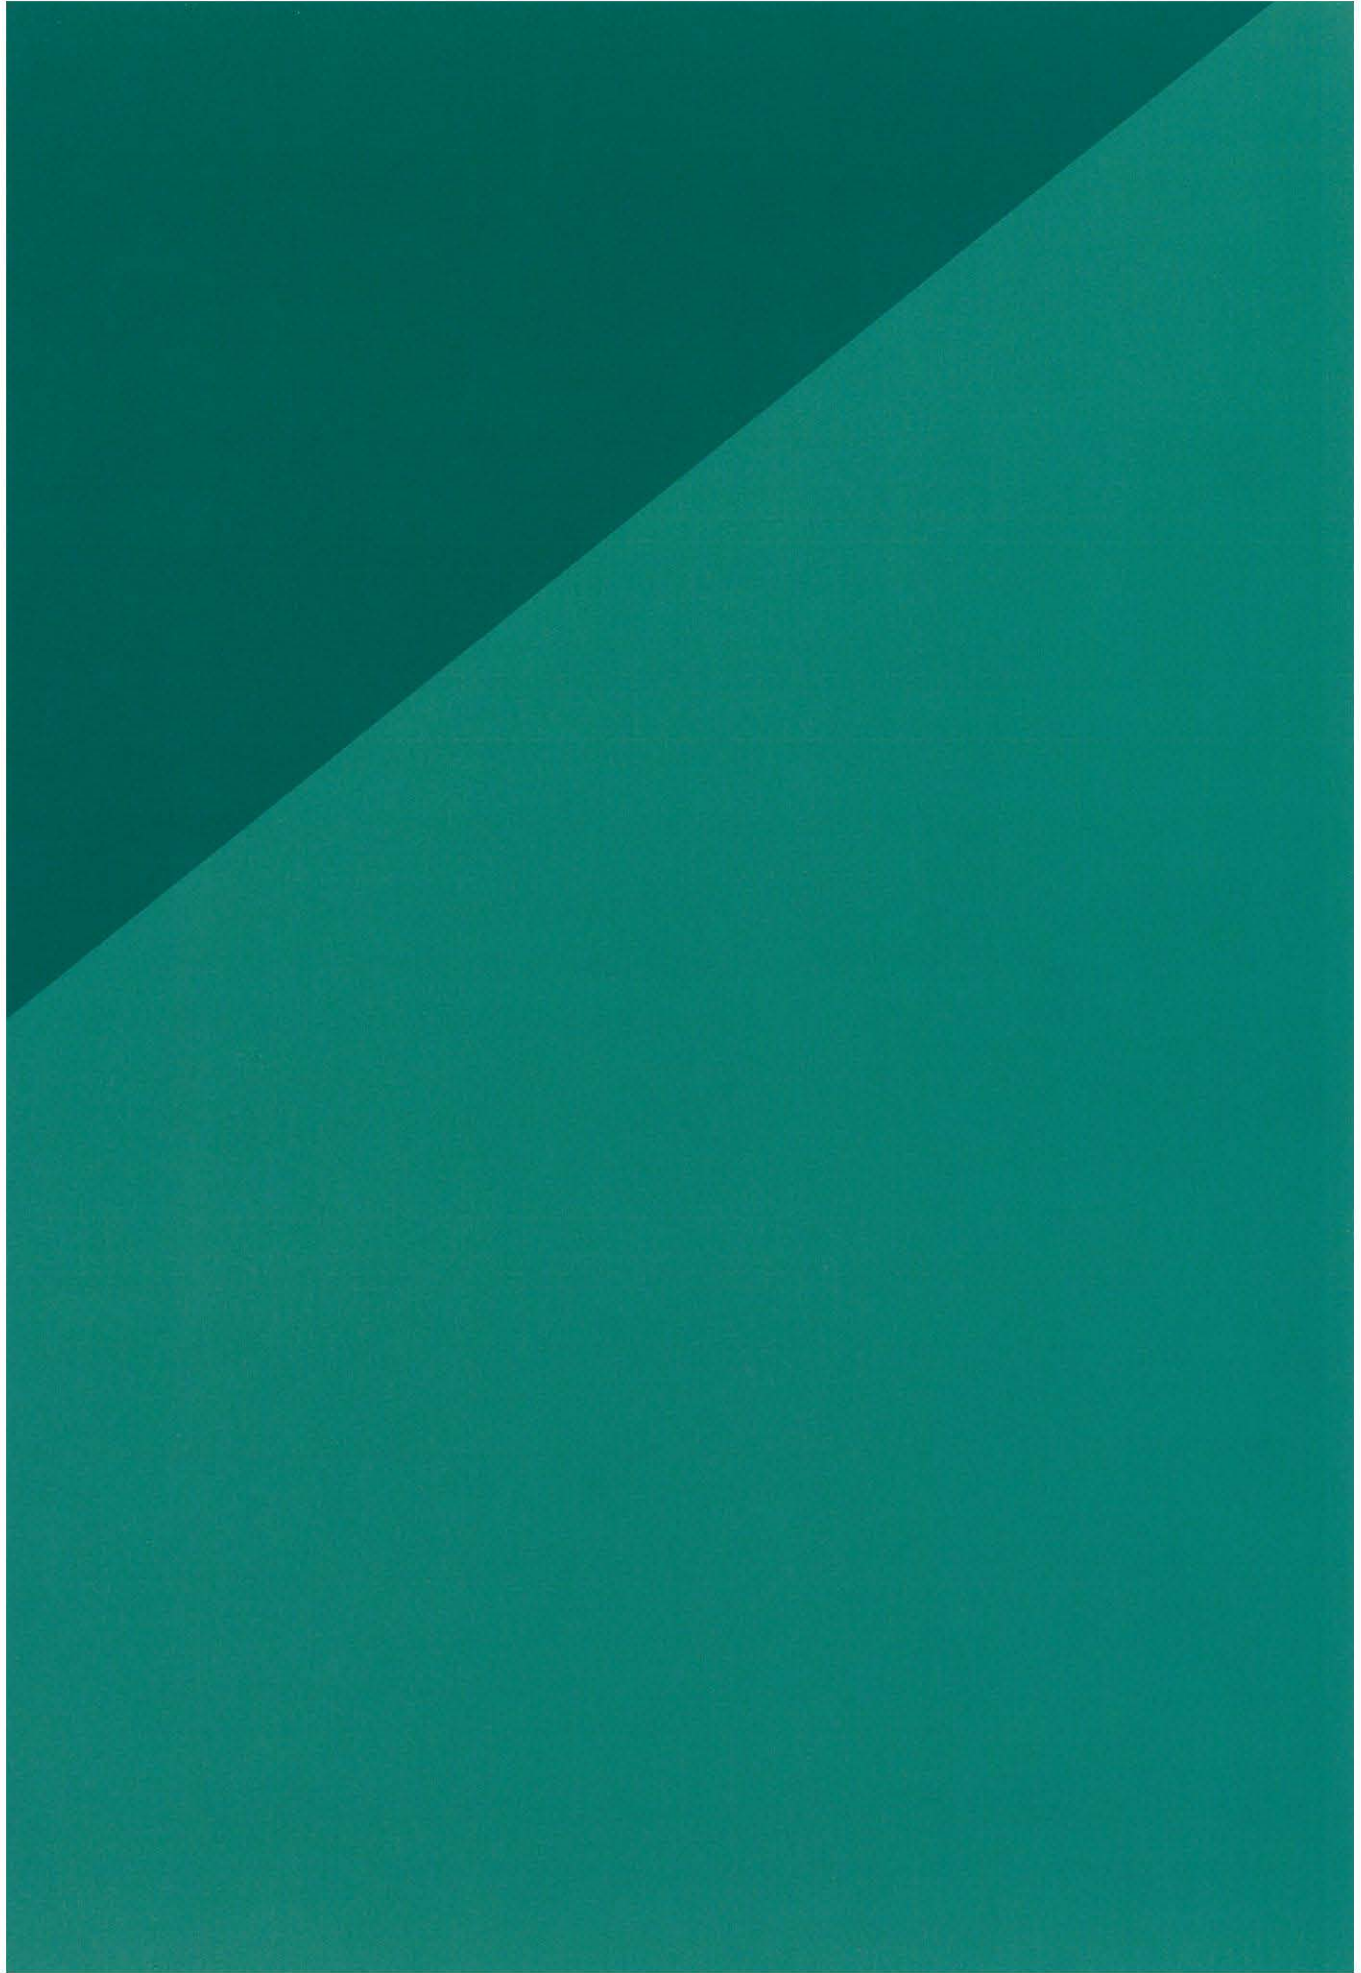

CRU CRAZIES

Cru Crazies are the fans that attend sporting events at NNU. These individuals are not only fans but also students that take time out of their day to come and support the athletic teams on campus. The Cru Crazies are true fans that always show up to the games decked out in red and black to support the Crusaders!

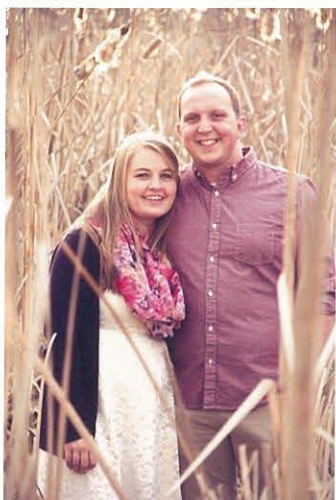

NEWS

ANGELA MONIQUE ARCHER

Major: Christian Ministries, Music Theory and Composition

Post Graduation: I will be going wherever Jesus has me! Hopefully working in a church somewhere, but anything to do with music will do.

In 10 Years: I hope to be somewhere new doing what I love with the people I love. As long as I have that, I will be content!

Favorite Verse or Quote: As cliché as it is, John 3:16. It so beautifully explains the deep love that God has for us, and finally accepting that has changed my life and given me the freedom to be truly me.

MICHELLE DORIS BORBE

Major: Christian Ministries, Youth Ministries minor

Post Graduation: I will be the Youth Pastor at Longview Church of the Nazarene while also receiving my masters through NNU's Murdock program.

In 10 Years: I see myself in 10 years still in ministry and loving every minute of it!

Favorite Verse or Quote: 1 Thessalonians 1:3

TEAGAN MCKENNA CAMERON

Major: Mass Communications, Graphic Design minor

Post Graduation: There are several options for my post graduation plan:

A. If I get any of my internships, The Ellen Show, Disney, or the Emmys, I will go where ever they ask.

B. I will try to work on the show Grimm or Portlandia as my family lives in the Portland area.

C. I will move to Los Angeles with my best friends and go to the Cinema Makeup School.

D. Go to London and try my luck in Europe.

In 10 Years: I will be a world famous Production Designer who is obviously rich and married with 3.5 kids. I will live in Ireland in a castle and be a falconer! But in all seriousness I hope to be happy. For me that's being with those I love doing things that I truly enjoy. I hope there is some travel, love and success in there, but if not, whoever "future happy me" looks like, I'm excited to meet her.

Favorite Verse or Quote: "Vulgarity is no substitute for wit."- Downton Abbey

RIMAR CHRISTIE

Major: Biology/Biodiversity

Post Graduation: Train for the 2016 Olympics and represent Barbados as a professional track athlete.

In 10 Years: I plan to be working as a Marine Biologist or a Sports Psychologist with my own practice.

Favorite Verse or Quote: Philippians 4:13.

MELISSA HOLLY COLBY

Major: English and Secondary Education

Post Graduation: I will be teaching high school English in Hawaii for the next couple years.

In 10 Years: I hope to have completed a Reading Specialist Master's, be continuing my teaching career, and enjoying a family of my own wherever the Army takes Cameron and I.

Favorite Verse or Quote: "With mirth and laughter let old wrinkles come" -Shakespeare in The Merchant of Venice.

DARCI ROCHELLE CURTIN

Major: Accounting

Post Graduation: This summer I will be an adult intern for Ernst & Young in Seattle and if all goes well, I will receive a full time employment off at the end of the internship. In June 2015 I will graduate with my Masters of Professional Accountancy from the University of Washington. Throughout that academic year I will have completed a busy season internship at EY and will begin the four-part CPA exam. I plan to have passed all parts of the CPA exam before I start full time at EY in the fall of 2015.

In 10 Years: I hope to be starting my own family, to be well-traveled and making plans to travel more, to have grown in my faith and to be invested in a church. I don't know where my career at EY will take me, maybe the path to partnership or maybe a path away from public accounting and into industry. Wherever my career and my life take me, ten years from now I hope to still be genuinely happy.

Favorite Verse or Quote: "Wherever you are, there you'll be."

TYLER JOHN DOOGHAN

Major: Mass Communications

Post Graduation: My plan is to continue to grow in the area of film and as well as my relationship with God.

In 10 Years: I see myself in the Northwest somewhere, maybe California, but I hope to own a production company where I make films that influence and challenge people to strive to better themselves and the world.

Favorite Verse or Quote: "Fifty years from now, when you're looking back at your life, don't you want to be able to say you had the guts to get in the car?"

JENNIFER LYNN FIELD

Major: Biology

Post Graduation: Attending Graduate School in Biology.

In 10 Years: I will be hiking with my future dog.

Favorite Verse or Quote: "The best journeys answer questions that in the beginning you didn't think to ask"-Jeff Johnson, 180* South

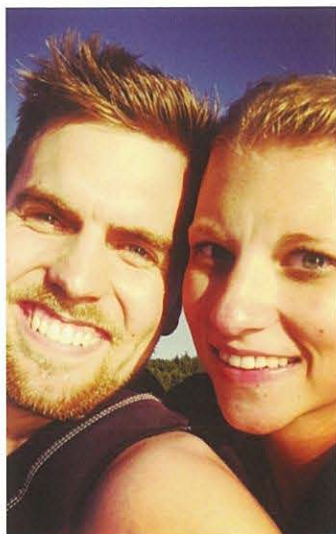

FERNANDA LIMA DE FREITAS

Major: Nursing, Communication Studies minor

Post Graduation: After graduation I will work in the USA for a couple of years and then work as a nurse-missionary in either Africa or South America.

In 10 Years: I will be married, have a degree in counseling and will be working as a missionary both as a nurse and a counselor.

Favorite Verse or Quote: Isaiah 41:10.

DAVIS JAMES HALLE

Major: Business Administration, Marketing

Post Graduation: Work in property management in the local treasure valley area.

In 10 Years: Living in the Seattle area loving life with my wife Laura and future children. Her in the established nursing world and I in the business world putting our well developed NNU education to use. Favorite Verse or Quote: Phillipians 3:13-14.

OLIVIA GRACE HICKS

Major: English, Political Science minor

Post Graduation: Right after Graduation, I'm taking a year off to prepare for law school and intern at a law firm. I will attend law school in the fall of 2015 somewhere on the West Coast.

In 10 Years: I want to be practicing law, and starting a family. I hope I will have maintained deep compassion for the poor and oppressed, and a commitment to justice. And I also hope to not be cynical about the world, but still in awe of its lovely and redemptive moments. But perhaps most importantly, in ten years, I want to have grown in to a place where I love God, others and myself more wholly than I did in 2014.

Favorite Verse or Quote: "Celebrate your existence."-William Blake

GREYSON DANIEL KILGORE

Major: Youth Ministry

Post Graduation: I have recently been hired as the Youth Pastor of South Salem Church of the Nazarene! Woohoo!

In 10 Years: I still want to be in youth ministry!

Favorite Verse or Quote: "Do the little things right every time."-My Dad

MAXWELL TYLER MOSER

Major: Mass Communication, English

Post Graduation: Over the summer and fall, I hope to be working in either Washington D.C. or Los Angeles in an internship for NPR or one of a number of film production companies, pursuing a career in filmmaking and video journalism.

In 10 Years: A decade from now I want to have published a book of Sedaris-style nonfiction stories and have written and directed a feature-length film or documentary. I want to live near the ocean in a tiny house of my own construction. I want to sleep in a loft with a skylight. I want to have read many more books and to have fathered many offspring.

Favorite Verse or Quote: "Come, let us have some tea and continue to talk about happy things."-Chaim Potok

SYDNEE OORD

Major: Psychology

Post Graduation: Go to grad school to study School Psychology.

In 10 Years: I hope to have a wonderful family and a job that I love.

Favorite Verse or Quote: 1 Corinthians 13:1-3.

Those chosen to receive the Who's Who honor are among the brightest and best of the senior and junior classes. Qualified upperclassmen were nominated by department chairs and faculty to be placed on the ballot. Twenty students were then chosen among the nominations. The Who's Who representatives are given the honor of representing NNU in the publication of, "Who's Who Among Students."

CRUSADER NEWS

The Crusader, lead by Editor-in-Cheif, Janea Fowler, went stayed on course with multiple print issues filled with interesting articles on students, events and community happenings. The staff of the Crusader did an excellent job bringing together local, global and NNU specific news that is relevant to the student body.

Student Highlight: Ben Miller By Marina Rose

Introducing Ben Miller, a deep-thinking history student from Southeast Alaska. When asked why he chose NNU he said that he felt the call of God on his life. In fact, the call of God was so strong in Ben's life that he didn't apply for any other school – NNU was destined to be his college home and has been for the last two and a half years.

One of the things that Ben absolutely loves about NNU is the “diversity of views held by the faculty.” Students at NNU get the chance to learn not only a trade but also a worldview, and each of the professors can have a profound impact on their students. Ben also said that he has learned to be “gracious and humble” at NNU. He has learned grace by accepting and respecting the many different viewpoints and beliefs of students and faculty. Likewise, he has learned to be humble by the amount of thinking that he has had to do. He said, “Much of what I knew before coming to college – and after – is in need of revision and modification.”

Ben was homeschooled growing up, allowing his family to continue their commercial fishing exploits for half of the year. This means that his whole family - mom, dad, one brother and two sisters - all lived together on a commercial fishing boat for months at a time. The close quarters made Ben form special bonds with his family and have made the family closer. Because Ben lived – and still lives – on a fishing boat for half of the year, he became accustomed to completing large amounts of homework at a time. Where most students have approximately nine months to complete a grade, Ben had six to seven. Working on the fishing boat didn't give him time to do schoolwork very often. However, he created effective study habits in high school that he has continued in college.

“I would much rather work hard on the weekend to be a few days ahead than to wait until Sunday night to do everything that is due Monday morning,” Ben said.

His efforts seem to have paid off because Ben was nominated by some of his professors to be a history tutor on campus this year. He is also a teacher's assistant in the history department, which gives him the opportunity to become a teacher, his career goal. After graduating from NNU he wants to “procure a masters/doctorate” and teach history in a college setting. Lastly, a word of advice from Ben: “Remember that everyone on campus is human, and thus each and every one of us must be treated with compassion, pity, grace, and respect.” He would also encourage everyone to extend this grace factor to not only fellow students but to faculty and staff as well. A wise word of advice from a wise fellow student.

“The Mountain Men”

By Olivia Grinder

I'm always glad to see them every time they come in, the bearded men. Dressed in warm plaids and cargo pants, they always look like they've come back from some great mountaineering adventure, like the kind you hear about on the Discovery Channel. I imagine their beards catching tiny flakes of snow as they climb up the side of Everest, faces ruddy and toes freezing off - and they don't even need a sherpa to guide them, right, because they got each other's backs, and they're strong.

I'm thinking this as they come in through the glass doors, holding the door open for the little old lady who smiles at them as they walk up to the counter, their bills ready and counted out. The shorter one orders. His voice always sounds like it's smiling even though I can't see if he really is under his beard. They always order the same thing: one twelve-ounce vanilla latte, one twelve-ounce plain black coffee. The tall one always pays, quietly putting a dollar in my tip jar after I hand him back his change. That's something I can always count on, that dollar.

"Thanks so much. You two have a great day!" I say, and the tall one nods, his eyes crinkling at the corners. His eyes are blue and old, the kind that look like they know exactly what you're thinking, and the crinkles around his eyes are not just from laughing, I'm sure. The two men almost always order their drinks to go, and I used to wonder why - maybe another grand mountain adventure they needed to be off on, I would think. I always just assumed that was it - men with beards like that had to be on some sort of adventure, right?

But then one day, I understood. They had ordered their drinks as usual, one twelve-ounce vanilla latte, once twelve-ounce plain black coffee, and decided to sit down on the couch over in the corner. As they were walking, the shorter one slipped on a spilled drink that I had unfortunately over-looked. He was about to fall when the tall one caught him, grasping the short one by the arm and helping him regain his balance. The tall one's hand remained on his friend's arm. Just a little too long.

Everyone saw, even the little old lady. And then came the whispers, the stares. I saw the corners of the little old lady's mouth turn down, her lips pucker in. It looked like she had just had a sip of that latte I made one time with the expired milk, the sour curdles lurking at the bottom. As I rushed to clean up the spilled drink, I saw them making their way to the doors. "I am so, so sorry!" I gushed, rags in my hand. The tall one looked at me and said, "It's not your fault." But the crinkles around his eyes did not move.

And so they left, and as the glass doors closed behind them, the normal chatter resumed, and the corners on the little old lady's mouth resumed their upward position as she sipped her sweet tea, and I mopped up the spill on the ground. As I mopped up the spill, I imagined the bearded men going off to Everest, where their beards would keep them warm, and if one of them fell, the other could help him up by the arm, and there would be no whispers and no stares and no little old ladies, there in the cold and silent snow.

"75-Cent Woman"

By Olivia Grinder

There is a woman who wanders downtown, near the time when the sun is making its way to the other side of the sky. She walks her dog. He's old, maybe as old as she is. She is missing a few teeth, and if you listen you can hear it when she talks, saliva filling in the dark gaps. A wet sound. You pretend not to notice her, the way she skulks and shuffles closer and closer in her worn flip-flops, the dog with its wispy white whiskers pattering beside her.

"Excuse me," says the thick voice, "do you happen to have 75 cents?"

At first, she would say it's for dog food. Poor dog, you think as you hand her the change. How long has he gone without food? Look at him, he's so small. But the next time she asks, and the time after that, you start to wonder. It's meth, your friends say. Look at her hair, her skin, her teeth. They tell her, "Sorry, I don't have any change," sipping from their lemon iced teas, eyes stony.

One time it is just you. She's sitting on the curb. She asks you for 75 cents. You offer to go in and get her a drink instead. A coffee? A tea? A smoothie?

"Oh, no thanks. I don't like drinks that much." She looks down at the dog. He looks up at her.

You continue with your mission. "They have cookies inside. Really good ones. Big chocolate cookies." Your eyebrows raise expectantly. You want so much for her to be hungry.

She caves in to your battering.

"Two big chocolate cookies," you say to the girl behind the counter, big grin on your face.

"For you? Must be hungry," she says.

"Nah, one's for 75 Cent lady," you boast.

As you bring the cookies out on a plate, you think of how she'll smile at you, the dark gaps showing. You walk to the curb. You look left, you look right. She's gone.

You hope no one notices you, a cactus holding a plate in each hand, a giant chocolate cookie on each plate. Your face burns as you walk back inside.

"Got stood up?" the counter girl asks.

"Yeah, by a meth head." You sit far away, and eat both of the cookies, sickly sweet, the oatmeal swelling up double in your stomach. You pick up the chocolate crumbs with your finger, licking them clean.

You leave the coffee house when the sun starts sending your shadow out in front of you, a long dark giant who claims your kinship. You step on it as you walk forward. You look up, and out into the distance you spot the 75-cent woman, her back toward the sun, walking toward those apartments where they keep all the people like her, the ones with no teeth. The dog patters along beside her, wispy white whiskers illuminated in the sun. Extending out from them, you see a darkness---a giant woman and a giant dog, walking on into the evening.

More than Just a Gym

By: Jackie Sutherland

Take a walk into the Johnson Sports Center (JSC) any day of the week, and you are likely to run into a myriad of people. Whether they are coaches, staff, student athletes, or students going to a class, they all have one thing in common: they are part of a community. For much of our student careers, we might be under the impression that the gym only exists as a place where we go to take "fundies" or another wellness class, where basketball games take place, where the more ambitious of us might go once a day (or once a week) to work out in the weight room. But to students who are part of one of the many athletic teams on this campus, that building holds hopes, dreams, friends, family, and a team of people who care and who foster dedication and determination.

Go into the JSC between the hours of 3:30 and 5:30 pm, and you will be hard pressed not to find one or more of the sports teams or solo athletes hard at work perfecting many different aspects of their games. From the basketball players practicing their shots to the members of the track and field team working on their throwing and running, you will get the chance to witness these fine young men and women in their element, away from the competitive field, simply doing something that they love. Isn't that the real reason to commit to anything? And to those of us who might not believe that being on a sports team is a commitment, think of this: Not all of the hours spent preparing for meets and competitions are required of these students. Many of the athletes go into the JSC out of sheer determination to be their personal best. We could all stand to take a page out of our student athletes' book and strive to be the best that we can.

Happiness is of Our Own Making

By: Lucas Reding

It seems like our lives today are devoted to so many things that we never seem to have a minute of free time. We promise our hours to trivial tasks and our days to repetitious workings. We are in such a hurry to finish the things we do today because we think they will bring about a better tomorrow. We believe that all the work we put in right now will be paid off in the future. Is that not one of the reasons we are attending this university today? We believe that all this school work and studying will pay off in the form of a better career and future for us.

But is this really true? Will we have a better future? Will we even enjoy this future life we work so hard for, if we aren't enjoying the one right now? I hear many people wish for a certain future date. They say, "In a week from now I will be in a much better position in my classes." Or, "A year from now, I will be graduated and be starting a career; life will be great then." But will it? If it were possible to ask our future selves how happy we were, what would be our answer? Not surprisingly, it would be more or less about the same as it is today.

As a society, we think “things” will change our happiness. We believe the more money we have, the happier we will be. If we had a better career, we would be happier. Heck, if we were better looking, we would be happier. But we know that is not true. Take for example a study done on the relative happiness between accident victims and lottery winners. A year after an individual won the lottery, they had the same level of happiness as they did before they won the lottery. The same goes for accident victims. A year after an accident, the victim was just as relatively happy as they were before the accident.

We need to realize that nothing but ourselves can make us truly happy. Everything else is just the icing---or better yet, the sprinkles on top of the icing that we call our happiness and our life.

What a Patriot Means to Me

By: Avery Russell

Many people think patriots are only those who serve our country in the military and sometimes make the ultimate sacrifice — their lives. However, patriots are also those who are left behind to continue their everyday lives in the midst of adversity, after their loved ones have been sent off to fight for the rights and safety of our country. Merriam-Webster's online dictionary describes a patriot as “one who loves his or her country and supports its authority and interests.” This describes my grandma, now 78 years old. She is a true patriot.

My grandpa went to Vietnam in 1967, leaving behind my grandma who was pregnant with their third child, my mom. My uncles, Davey and Stevie, were 10 and 7. My grandma kept the homefires burning while my grandpa served his country. In this way, she, too, served her country. My grandma was 32 at the time she said goodbye to my grandpa when he volunteered for a tour of duty in Vietnam as part of the U.S. Air Force. She said her two boys thought that they could get away with just about anything then. But my grandma told them, “Just because your dad left doesn't mean you don't have to listen to me!” And they did listen. My grandma had a support system in her family, church, and friends. These people who loved and assisted her while my grandpa was gone are also true patriots. Even though it was hard to understand why a fundamental piece of their family was missing, my uncles and mom were patriots for living without their father for a year.

My grandma is a patriot because she kept things running on the home-front and tried to support her family even though my grandpa wasn't there. She never thought about what it was like to do things by herself. She just did what needed to be done and didn't question it because she knew that was the way things had to be. She carried herself in a way that ultimately showed her as a strong individual, riding on the hope that her husband would return soon to be with his family. My grandpa was gone for 11 months. My mom was born June 8, 1968, and my grandpa did not get to see her, his only daughter, until February 1969.

My grandpa was also a true patriot. At the age of 18, he joined the United States Air Force not knowing what the long road ahead would look like. Throughout his service in the Air Force, he was stationed all over the United States as well as in Northern Canada. When talk of Vietnam surfaced and more volunteers were sought out, my grandpa was one of those men to stand up and take on the challenge. With two boys and a pregnant wife at home, this would not have been an easy decision for any man, but what it did mean was a pay raise and a way to better support his growing family. He worked in radar near Danang at Monkey Mountain in Vietnam during the day and at night drove officials to hot zones across enemy lines for extra pay. He is fortunate he came home safely, but the welcome was not as friendly as many had imagined it would be. Wearing a uniform and walking through the airport brought scowls, hateful comments, and even spit to the men coming home from Vietnam at that time. It was a time of confusion and misunderstanding in America, which unfortunately led to bad treatment of the men who not only fought overseas but gave their lives as well. Up until his death in 2006, he and my grandma dealt with the lasting effects of his being exposed to Agent Orange, a defoliant chemical used during the war, which probably contributed to his prostate cancer, diabetes, and high blood pressure. The effects war has on serving men are not small, and it's humbling to not only hear their stories but to help them as well.

As Veteran's Day has recently passed, we remember all our heroes and patriots, and we should continue to remember them throughout the year. Patriots come in all forms, in every work field, and from every state. Today's patriots are not only our servicemen and women, but the families who are left behind to support their children, run schools and business, and keep the United States strong by bonding together and completing the everyday tasks at hand.

OASIS STAFF 2013-2014

The Editor-in-Chief of Oasis Ella Jamieson, along with her staff, spent many long hours designing, editing, and creating yearbook that was worthy of the Oasis name. Each page of this yearbook is filled with beautiful photography and copy hopes to capture each cherished moment of the 2013-2014 year. The hope of the Oasis staff is that you will find yourself looking back at this year with many fond memories that you will be able to keep forever!
